A California Breakfast
Ask Mr. Ochs
We Need Ships
Spaniard Upsidedown

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24—Often the East asks, "Doesn't a warm weaken the energies of California men and women? Are not the people there enervated as Ca[illegible]lians used to be?'

* * *

MR. OCHS, who owns the New York Times, can answer that. He attended a session of the L[illegible] Riding and Breakfast Club. At six o'clock yesterday morning he [illegible] songs, hundreds of men [illegible] their arms on each other's [illegible] swinging back and forth as they sang.

By 9 he had eaten buckwheat cakes, ham and eggs, boiled pears, had heard Russian vaudeville performers sing, and had seen them dance, made a speech of his own and listened to other five-minute speeches; had been photographed with five charming young women known as the "Wampus Babies," met and was photographed with a young woman who had just ridden horse 4,000 miles across the country; had been photographed with Douglas Fairbanks' bounding young Mexican star, Lupe Valez, and learned the words of a song beginning
"Oh, You ham.
Oh, You eggs."

* * *

BY 10 he had posed for William Fox's "Movietone" and was inspecting real estate, 1700 feet high, with young Mr. Chandler.

The remarkable thing about the people out here is their terrific energy. Mr. Ochs will confirm that.

* * *

J. A. H. KERR, vice president of the Security National Bank, told the energetic "breakfasters" that this country should have a merchant marine of its own, and not rely on competitors to carry imports and exports that for the 1927-1928 period may amount to ten thousand million dollars. The country will pay for a year's transportation at sea $600,000,000, 80 per cent of it going to foreign shipping.

* * *

THIS country, during and since the war, has spent three thousand million dollars on ships, and hasn't got a merchant marine yet.

In 1830, nearly 100 years ago, American ships carried more than 89 per cent of American commerce. In 1926 a little over 32 per cent.

* * *

THAT is something to think about in connection with the birthday of Washington who objected to entangling foreign alliances. We are bound to have such entanglements if we depend on foreign countries to carry our supplies in case of war.

* * *

NEXT week the Basque, Uzcudun, whom fight fanciers and convenience call "The Spaniard Upsidedown," will fight a tall, powerful colored man named Godfrey.

This intellectual neighborhood has paid $44,000 for tickets to see what will happen to Mr. Godfrey. On mild Pacific or rough Atlantic, human nature is the same. Men will pay $10 to see a fight who would not pay $5 for the best book.

* * *

STUDENTS of anthropology will note that the Basque Uzcudun, and the South American Firpo are the two most powerful, rugged men that the prize ring has seen in 100 years.

Mr. Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney will tell you frankly:

"I'm quite willing to let someone else take care of that Uzcudun person."

It seems he hits very hard, and when you hit him, he does not notice it.

* * *

FRANK LOCKHART, whom Barney Oldfield calls "the greatest automobile driver in history," drove his car 200 miles an hour on a Florida beach, lost control, shot out into the ocean and may die.

* * *

SUCH speed in automobiles is valueless because it cannot be used. Trying for it is as unwise as some "stunts" that fliers do, emphasizing the danger of flying, instead of emphasizing safety, as they should.

* * *

IT is to be hoped that Colonel Lindbergh, the most important young man to his country, will realize the danger and folly of unnecessary risk. A serious accident to Lindbergh would set flying back 10 years in America. That is not what he wants.

* * *

MANY will be interested to learn from Mr. Ochs that Lindbergh paid all his expenses on his trip through Mexico and the Central American republics. His flying on United States territory was financed by the Guggenheim Flying Foundation. He financed his own trip south of the Rio Grande.

* * *

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY brings more arguing about George Washington's "morals," what he drank, whether he manufactured his own beer, whiskey, etc.

Washington's job was to beat the British and establish the nation. He attended to both, and gave the country wise advice, the rest is as unimportant as Lord Nelson's love affair with Lady Hamilton. Nelson wrote his story at Trafalgar. Rooting around in semi-historical mud will not change that.

Townships Join With County Board on Crossing Project

OPPOSE PLAN OF SHARING IN COST OF WORK

Stand of Commissioners on Elimination Question Approved by Unanimous Vote

53 ATTEND MEETING

Most Extensive Road Improvement Program in History Planned This Year

Township officials have joined forces with the board of commissioners of Marion County in opposing expenditure of county funds for elimination of railroad grade crossings on state highways.

This action was taken by trustees and clerks of the county's 15 townships in session here yesterday, when the commissioners' stand on the crossing question was approved by a unanimous vote. There are 60 township trustees and clerks in the county and 53 were present at the meeting, held in the Eagles' hall on W. Center-st.

Commissioners contend that under provisions of the law, half of the cost of crossing elimination on state roads should be paid by the state highway department and half by the railroad companies. Money for this purpose is provided by the extra one cent gasoline tax now being collected, the commissioners assert. All of this extra revenue, the county board points out goes to the state highway department.

State Ready, Claim

G. F. Schlesinger, state highway director has notified the county board that his department is ready to proceed with crossing work here but must first have assurance that the county will assist in the financing by paying one fourth of the cost.

The plan, he states, is to have the state pay an additional one-fourth and the railroads the other half. Marion County, it is reported, is one of the few counties in the state which has failed to join in the co-operative plan.

The crossing question became involved in controversy several weeks ago when Bird-McGinnis Post, No. 162, of the American Legion, adopted a resolution addressed to the board of commissioners urging that immediate steps be taken to start elimination of dangerous crossings in the county.

Surveyor Talks

Action of the township officials was taken yesterday after a discussion of the question led by County Surveyor C. H. Leavens, who presided at the meeting.

The commissioners state that they intend to stand pat on their decision to refuse county aid in financing crossing work.

The meeting of the township officials was called by Surveyor Leavens in accordance with provisions of state law which require an annual conference for discussion of road improvement and maintenance work.

CHALLENGE, DEATH

Girl Fires After Running Youth and Kills Him

Grand Haven, Mich., Feb. 24—A bullet through the heart was the answer of Mary Plomondon, 10, to the challenge of William Schinn, 17-year-old high school student and football player, that she could not hit him with a .22 caliber rifle.

The shooting was accidental, according to Coroner Henry J. Boer. He said there would be no inquest.

"I'll bet you can't hit me," Schinn is reported to have challenged, running as he made the remark.

Failing to realize the danger involved, Mary shouldered the rifle, aimed and shot Schinn in the back.

FEAR 20 MEN DEAD

New Type of Oil Engine Being Developed Here by Marion Steam Shovel Co.

Experimental Work Entering Final Stages; If Tests Prove Satisfactory Company Expects To Lay Plans at Once for Manufacture

Development of a new type of oil engine which is a distinct departure from those now in use and which, if proven successful, promises to result in one of the most important motive power achievements of recent years, is sought in experiments in progress at the plant of the Marion Steam Shovel Co.

The experimental work, which began more than a year ago at the local factory, is now entering its final stages and it is thought that results within the next few weeks will show whether the engine is to be a success.

Should the tests prove satisfactory and eliminate every possibility of doubt regarding the engine's efficiency and dependability, it is expected that plans for its manufacture will be inaugurated at once.

The basic principal of the new engine is a system which atomizes the fuel, a mixture of oil and air, into a cloud which is ignited by spark, resulting in operation of the pistons similar to the functioning of a gasoline engine.

This vaporizing system is something which has been sought by engineering experts and inventors for years and should final developments show that the principal has finally been successfully worked out in the engine being tested here there is probability of Marion becoming the headquarters of an exceptionally important new manufacturing enterprise.

The vaporizing system is the invention of Samuel P. Cowardin and his son, Harry Cowardin, of Richmond, Va., who worked out the idea after months of experimenting. The son has been here for approximately a year assisting in tests being made at the Marion Steam Shovel plant.

Name Selected

The product will be known as the Marion-Cowardin engine. All of the patent rights are now held by the Marion-Cowardin Engine Corporation, which has been organized as a subsidiary of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. The officers are J. L. Ackerson, president; C. B. King, vice president, and George V. R. Mulligan, secretary and treasurer. They hold the same offices in the Marion Steam Shovel Co.

In the Diesel type of oil engine, now in general use, fuel combustion is obtained by having the fluid oil strike a plate which must first be heated and as

102 DEMOCRAT CANDIDATES TO TEXAS LISTED

Bruner Makes Public Slate; Pomerene First Choice for Nomination

Columbus, Feb. 24—Names of 102 Ohio Democrats who are candidates for delegates and alternates from the Buckeye state to the Democratic national convention, to be held at Houston, Texas, next summer, were made public here today by Henry G. Bruner, Mansfield, chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee.

The list contains eight candidates for delegate-at-large, eight candidates for alternates-at-large, 44 congressional district candidates for delegates and 44 candidates for alternates at-large from the states 22 congressional districts.

Each candidate designated former U. S. Senator Atlee Pomerene, Cleveland, as his, or her, first choice for the Democratic presidential nomination and former Congressman George White, Marietta, for "second choice." Gov. Vic Donahey, Pomerene and White, it was stated, approved the complete list of delegates and alternates.

With no apparent opposition, these 102 candidates are expected to be elected at the Ohio presidential primaries, to be held April 24, next.

Bruner stated that the question whether Senator Pomerene would enter the presidential preference contest at the April primaries would not be decided, probably, until late today. Indications, however, were that Pomerene would not weigh in, many Democratic leaders being of the opinion that it was not necessary.

The list of Democratic candidates follows:

For delegates at large: Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke, Cleveland, Democratic national committeewoman from Ohio; Mrs. Josephine McGowan, Canton; Robert F. Scott, Cambridge, chairman, Democratic State Central Committee; William W. Durbin, Kenton, former chairman, Democratic State Executive Committee; Thomas J. Duffy, Columbus, former chairman, State Industrial Commission; Claude Meeker, Columbus broker; Attorney J. Henry Goeke, Lima; M. R. Denver, Wilmington.

For alternates-at-large: Mrs. Eleanor Bailey Johnson, Zanesville; Miss Marie E. McCurry, Columbus; Vincent Beckman, Cincinnati; Kevin O'Dwyer, Toledo; John Wood, Georgetown; J. Spriggs McMahon, Dayton; James H. Merker, Versailles; Edward S. Wertz, Wooster.

For congressional district delegates: First district—W. A. Julian, Cincinnati, Democratic national committeeman from Ohio; Simeon M. Johnson, Cincinnati; second—Charles J. Becklet, Cincinnati; Thomas J. Connor, Cincinnati; third—Earl O. Shoup, Dayton; Warren Gard, Hamilton; fourth—John F.

RUSSIAN PAPERS LAUD ARMY, FORGET TROTZKY

Moscow, Feb 24—Although Russian newspapers today devoted many columns of space eulogizing the red army, the name of Leon Trotzky, founder of the army, was never once mentioned. Trotzky is in exile. The celebration of the tenth anniversary of the creation of the Soviet army began yesterday. At the time it was founded Trotzky was commissar for war and commander-in-chief of the army.

HOOVER MEETS TEST BEFORE FLOOD GROUP

Sidesteps Trouble by Suggesting Compromise Plan for Financing Work

Washington, Feb. 24 — Herbert Hoover, leading Republican presidential aspirant, met the political test on the flood control issue today when he appeared before the Senate Commerce Committee and recommended a compromise plan for financing the Mississippi River program. He suggested the appointment of a federal commission to determine within a year the financial capacity of the stricken flood areas to help the federal government in meeting the cost of the project.

Hoover said the compromise plan originated with President Coolidge and had the president's complete approval.

Politicians had anticipated the appearance of Hoover before the committee with considerable interest, as it had been freely gossiped about that Hoover was to be "embarrassed" by the questions propounded to him. Senator Willis of Ohio is a member of the committee, and is said to have been instrumental in bringing Hoover before it.

He refused to comment upon the engineering aspects of flood control, saying he was a mining engineer, not a hydraulic engineer.

LINDBERGH RESTS

Flier at Selfridge Field Calls Off "Mystery Hop"

Detroit, Feb. 24—Rest and seclusion at Selfridge Field until late tonight or early tomorrow was the program today for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, here on a mystery mission said to involve inauguration of a new air line.

The flying colonel is the guest of Maj. Thomas G. Lanphier, commandant of the first pursuit group at Selfridge. Secrecy continues to envelop his plans due to his insistence that he be kept out of the public eye.

Lindbergh called off another "mystery mission" hop, scheduled for this morning and decided to remain quietly at the field.

BANDITS FORCE EMPLOYES TO OPEN VAULTS OF BANK

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 24—Holding up employes of the Wellston Trust Co. as they came to work today, four bandits forced them to open the bank vaults and escaped with $30,000 in cash. The robbers are believed to have waited in the bank all night.

105 WORKERS RESCUED FROM ARKANSAS PIT

Total of 125 Entombed in Shaft at Ferry Lind by Explosion

35 REPORTED HURT

Rescue Car Rushed to Scene of Disaster by U. S. Bureau of Mines

Ferry Lind, Ark., Feb. 24—Twenty miners are believed to be dead in Mana Coal Mine No. 3 here following an explosion early today which entombed 125 men.

Rescue crews blasting their way to the entombed men, reported shortly before noon that 105 of the imperilled miners, had been rescued.

About 35 of these were injured in the explosion and others were suffering from the effects of gas, they said.

A statement from the mine offices said the explosion was caused by escaping gas. Of the 125 men working in the mine, all were trapped, but 105 escaped through an entrance blasted out by volunteer rescuers.

The 20 entombed are feared to be dead.

* * *

Pittsburgh, Feb. 24—G. S. McCaa, superintendent of the rescue division of the U. S. Bureau of Mines here stated that Mine Rescue Car No. 6 located at Ardmore, Okla., would be dispatched immediately to the scene of the explosion near Ferry Lind, Ark., when informed by International News Service of the disaster today.

McCaa stated he would notify Charles Herbert at Vincennes, Ind., in charge of the Arkansas district of the disaster. McCaa had heard nothing of the report.

An automobile rescue crew stationed at McCallister, Okla., probably the nearest to the scene of the disaster, was aboard the rescue car at Ardmore, McCaa said. The two crews will work together.

Blind Thirty Years, She Sees Again

Awakens To Find Sight Restored; Doesn't Recognize Husband

CHICAGO, Feb. 24 — Thirty years ago—back in 1898—in a different era, in a different life, after 40 years of happiness in her simple homelife, the light went out for Mrs. Carrie Sillery of Carpentersville, Ind., and she became blind. Stone blind.

Years passed—30 of them—long and torturous—and suddenly her prayers were answered and Mrs. Carrie Sillery could see.

She was sleeping of an afternoon, sleeping upon a couch from which she saw only darkness. She awoke. A piercing scream brought her husband, Charles Sillery, into the room.

"Charlie—Charlie—I can see," she muttered incoherently in her joy.

* * *

BUT Mrs. Sillery stopped. It wasn't Charlie before her. This man had white hair, was a little stooped about the shoulders, was a little older. She remembered him as a robust man with bushy dark haid. Now his hair was white. Mrs. Sillery looked into a mirror. Her own hair was white and a different face stared out at her.

She asked for the children—babies she called them—for when she "went to sleep" they were babies but now grown into young men and women. One was hastily summoned from Hammond, Ind., another was called from Indianapolis.

A reunion was held today.

JURY TO GET CASE

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 24—The fate of Joseph Foster Buckley, Weston youth, accused of slaying his sweetheart, Miss Grace E. Mills, probably will be in the hands of a Middlesex County jury before night. Final arguments were under way today. Defense Counsel George L. Ellsworth closing and District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell following him.

HE HAS NEVER HAD BIRTHDAY

Little Buddy Koehich of Lakewood, Ohio, has decided on celebrating Washington's birthday as his own. That day will be the only one he will get a kick from. Buddy will be four years old next Wednesday and his own birthdays will come four years apart, every leap-year.

Speaking Order For Tone And National Finals In Oratorical Contest Decided

Winner of Ohio Meet in Which Students in This Territory Are To Participate Will Appear Fourth on Program at District Final at Troy, N. Y.

The speaking order for the participants in the zone finals and the national final meetings of the National Oratorical Contest, which The Marion Star is sponsoring in this territory has been determined in Washington by lot drawings made by Frank B. Noyes, publisher of the Washington Star.

For the purpose of the contest, the nation is divided into eight major zones with clearing centers at New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, Raleigh, N. C., Chicago, Troy, N. Y., Kansas City and Oklahoma City. The winner in each of these zone meetings will obtain a place in the national finals, which automatically carries with it an 11 weeks tour of Europe, with all expenses paid, as all of the eight national finalists are entitled to this trip, regardless of the order in which they finish.

Contestants in the territory of the Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., of which The Marion Star is a unit, are in Zone No. 8 and will compete in the zone final meeting at Troy, N. Y. on May 11.

The champions of the different newspaper territories in that zone will speak in the following order:

Burlington Free Press, first; Binghamton News, second; Grand Rapids Press, third; Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., fourth; Indiana State Bar Association, fifth; Worcester-Telegram Gazette, sixth; Buffalo Evening News, seventh; Portland Press Herald, eighth, and Troy Record, ninth.

The speaking order at the national finals to be held in Washington on May 26, will be as follows:

First place, winner in zone final at Washington; second, winner at Philadelphia; third, winner at Kansas City; fourth, winner at New York City; fifth, winner at Oklahoma City; sixth, winner at Chicago, and eighth, winner at Raleigh, N. C.

In case there is any gap in the speaking order, that gap will be filled by consolidation. In other words, it will not be necessary to make a re-drawing for positions at any one zone final meeting.

Star Backs Contest

The results of the last four national final meetings, all of which were judged by members of the United States Supreme Court, do not show conclusively that any one part of the program is more favorable to a speaker than another.

The Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., are sponsoring the contest in Ohio. The Marion Star, as a member of this group, is backing the contest in the territory which it serves, including seven counties, Marion, Morrow, Union, Morrow, Wyandot, Delaware and Hardin.

Under the plan to be used here every school unit in this territory will have

RADIO COMMISSION SETS ECONOMY MARK

Three Members Receiving No Salary, While Force Is "Borrowed" Personnel

Washington, Feb. 24—All records for economy in federal government have been captured by the Federal Radio Commission.

Three members, O. H. Caldwell, H. A. Lafount and Sam Pickard, are donating their services to the government—unwillingly, however, these officials receiving no salary because of failure of the Senate to confirm their nominations.

Only E. O. Sykes, acting chairman, is on a salary basis.

Since the sixty-ninth Congress adjourned without providing funds for its operation, the radio commission "borrowed" personnel, such as stenographers, clerks and experts, from other departments and experts quarters in the Commerce Department.

Some funds were obtained from the radio division of the Commerce Department, while a considerable volume of old equipment, discharged by other governmental units, was pressed into service.

COOLIDGE APPROVES NEW $100,000,000 BUILDING BILL

The sum is to be expended throughout the country during the next five years in construction of the new federal buildings.

SEARCH THOUGH NIGHT FOR BODY OF CHILD

Plainfield, N. J., Feb. 24 — After wading in the muck of a huge culvert under the glare of torches all through the night and dragging the muddy waters of Cedar Brook, police and firemen continued their search today for four-year old Philip Delella who fell into the stream while playing with two companions.

On the banks of the narrow creek, sometimes sobbing, sometimes shrieking wildly, stood the child's mother, Mrs. Amiello Delia. All night she had refused to leave, intent on every move that might bring the body to the surface.

SIX BANDITS ESCAPE WITH $15,000 FROM CITY BANK

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 24—Brandishing sawed-off shot guns and revolvers, six bandits held up the City Bank here today in wild-west fashion, forced employes, officers and 13 customers to lie upon the floor and escaped with their loot.

The amount taken is undetermined but is expected to be more than $15,000. Sacks of silver, packages of currency and all securities in sight were scooped up and carried away.

ABEL & WROTEN BILLIARD ROOM BURGLARIZED

Cash Taken from Strong Box After Combination Is Hammered Off

SLEDGE HAMMER USED

Robbers Time Visit To Miss Patrolman; $5 in Register Overlooked

Paying their second profitable visit to Marion within a month, sledge hammer safe crackers, last night, looted the safe in the Marion Billiard Parlor in the basement of the National City Bank & Trust Co. building, Center and Main-sts, and escaped with $537.60 in cash.

The loss is partially covered by insurance, police were informed.

Apparently timing their visit to the parlor so as to miss the patrolman stationed on that beat, the burglars gained entrance to the place, operated by Abel & Wroten, by breaking the heavy plate glass window in the front door.

After effecting an entrance by removing the shattered glass and stepping through the opening without unlocking the door the burglars moved a cigar case away from the safe to provide room to swing a sledge hammer.

Knocking off the combination of the safe the burglars used a key which had been taken from the cash register to open a compartment where the cash was kept. Five dollars in cash in the register was overlooked.

That the burglarly was the work of individuals familiar with the parlor is the belief of the proprietors and police. They pointed out that the intruders apparently knew where the key was kept for they obtained it in the dark.

The assumption that the burglars worked in the dark is based on the fact that the $5 in cash in the register from which the key was taken was overlooked.

The robbery was discovered shortly after 1 o'clock this morning when Patrolman Fred C. Norton in his round of business houses flashed his light down the stairway and noticed broken glass at the entrance of the billiard parlor.

An investigation this morning revealed that nothing in addition to the cash was taken.

On Feb. 9 a similar burglary was committed at the cigar store and news stand conducted on W. Center-st by H. L. Beach. In that case more than $150 was taken after the combination had been hammered from the safe.

TWO DECLARATIONS PLACED WITH BOARD

John H. Clark and Frank Wiedemann, Attorneys, File as Candidates

Two declarations of candidacy for the presidential preference primary to be held on April 24 were filed with the Marion County Board of Elections today, the last day for the period allowed for entries.

John H. Clark, local attorney, filed as a candidate for alternate to the Republican national convention, naming Frank B. Willis as his first choice for the presidency and Frank O. Lowden of Illinois as second choice.

Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann filed his declaration as candidate for Democratic convention alternate, pledging his support to Atlee Pomerene for the presidency and naming George White of Marietta, former congressman, as second choice.

Both Named

Both Clark and Wiedemann were named on the slates of delegates and alternates for the eighth congressional district at recent meetings of district organization leaders of their respective parties.

Signed consents of Willis and Lowden accompanied Clark's declaration and similar certificates signed by Pomerene and White were filed with Wiedemann's papers.

Under provisions of the election law, each candidate for district delegate or alternate files in his home county. The entire list for the district is then assembled at the secretary of state's office.

Declarations of candidacy for delegates and alternates to the state conventions are scheduled to be filed before the board of elections office closes today. Each party is entitled to 12 delegates and 12 alternates from Marion County.

He will continue to Cloncurry by train tomorrow, the dispatch said.

REPUBLICANS BACK NEW NAVY PROGRAM

Building of 15 Cruisers and One Aircraft Carrier on Schedule

Washington, Feb. 24—America's newest naval building program as drafted by the House Naval Affairs Committee was indorsed by Republican leaders today and its adoption by Congress predicted.

Although some dissatisfaction was expressed because the program does not bring American naval strength to parity with Great Britain, it was characterized as "a step in the right direction."

The building of 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier, all to be laid down in three years and completed in six at a cost of $274,000,000, would round out the present badly balanced Navy, exponents of the program said.

The door still is open for President Coolidge to carry out much of the Wilbur $740,000,000 program, it was declared. Authority exists under the 1916 act for the president to seek appropriations for nine destroyer leaders and three submarines.

If the contents of your Pay Envelope doesn't believe in making long calls, don't quite despair. After an extensive survey Boston Teachers' College announces that girls earning $22 a week can be well dressed and spend only $210 a year, and answers the question of "How do they do it?" by retorting, "Knowing how to buy."

There is no especial news in this to the young woman who has learned to shop the "Penney way." Long ago she knew that a new Spring coat need not be a tragedy, nor a new hat or a pair of evening slippers a matter of "hope deferred." Our clothing is not only of excellent quality, but our New York buyers select styles that are practical adaptations of the current mode.

Fortunate purchases on our part is the reason. When we buy low, we sell low. And besides that, we are running on a much smaller margin of profit to insure quick sales. For Saturday and Monday only.

HOUSE WETS, DRYS WRANGLE ON HYMN

Some Say Too Much "Wine" in "Columbia, Gem of the Ocean"

P[illegible], R. I., Feb. 24—Wets and [illegible] of the House of Representatives [illegible] picked over the correct wording [illegible] Columbia, the Gem of the [illegible] day had a special committee [illegible] gating with instructions to [illegible] on Tuesday.

The [illegible] started following the W[illegible] birthday exercise when the [illegible] of the final chorus were [illegible]:

[illegible] to greet new come hither,
[illegible] full of love to the brim,
[illegible] wreaths of our heroes [illegible] wither
[illegible] star on the banner grow dim.

Rep. Fletcher W. Lawton asserted [illegible] should have been read:

[illegible] cup, the wine cup, bring [illegible]
[illegible] it up to the brim,
[illegible] wreaths of our heroes [illegible] wither
[illegible] star of our banner grow dim.

Rep. Mrs. O'Neill, Democrat, challenged the correctness of the Lawton [illegible]. Other verbal clashes followed [illegible] upshot of the matter being the appointment of the committee, which today was delving into the question.

GERMAN HYDROPLANES HAVE "LIFTING POWDER"

Berlin.—A mystery powder which makes ships and hydroplanes unsinkable, [illegible] sunken submarines and other vessels [illegible] a short time and enables individual persons to carry their life preserver [illegible] their coat pocket has been invented [illegible] Rudolf Marcks, former government commissioner and now head of the firm Marcks & Co., of Berlin.

Experiments with this powder have been so successful that the Lufthansa, the German air traffic company, has equipped all of its hydroplanes with it.

The secret of this mystery powder is that it generates large amounts of gas as soon as it gets into contact with water. This gas, as light as air, fills up air-tight bags which are folded into a small package over the powder container. [illegible] the bags expand, displace that much water and lift or keep afloat whatever they are attached to.

ANOTHER MARION LADY INDORSING THE NEW KONJOLA

Ended the Dreadful Neuritis Pains She Was Suffering

Reports are now being received from all parts of Marion, in which men and women are describing the wonderful relief this celebrated Konjola medicine has given them in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders or rheumatism and neuritis. Just a few days ago, Mrs. Emma McNeal, well known Marion lady, residing at 322 Uncapher Ave., this city, made the following remarkable statement:

MRS. EMMA M'NEAL

"Konjola has helped me a great deal more than I ever expected of any medicine," said Mrs. McNeal. "It built up my health in general and at the same time it relieved the awful neuritis pains which I had been suffering for years.

"I was having a terrible time with my nerves and I couldn't find a medicine to help me. But the worst thing about my case was the dreadful neuritis pains which affected my arms and limbs. My muscles seemed to jerk and twist, and I often felt like every nerve in my body was on edge. I couldn't sleep, and I know I was suffering worse agonies than I could describe in writing. Both day and night I was in misery.

"I couldn't find anything that would really end my trouble, and I didn't know what to do next. Then I heard about Konjola and what it was doing for Marion people, so I went to the Konjola Man and I got this medicine and started taking it right away. I noticed a difference almost at once, and I continued with Konjola until now I can hardly realize that I ever had a sick day in my life, and the wonderful relief I got from that awful neuritis is the greatest blessing of all. I can sleep a whole night without one single pain. I always feel good in the mornings, and seem to have more life and energy than I ever noticed in myself before.

"After all the great good Konjola has done for me I can recommend it to everyone."

Konjola is strongly recommended at the Stump & Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main-st, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

Five Air Records Broken.

And now we must pay our tribute of praise to Bert Hinkler, the British aviator, who, by his flight of almost 11,000 miles from London to Australia in a little over fifteen days has established five records. He has made the first non-stop flight from London to Rome, the fastest flight from England to India, the fastest flight from England to Australia, the longest solo flight and the longest flight in a light aeroplane. Using a thirty-five horsepower machine, equipped with folding wings enabling him to house it in a garage, he almost cut in half the twenty-eight days taken by Sir Ross and Sir Keith Smith in 1919 in a plane using two motors which gave it 375 horsepower and beating by twenty-three days the time of Alan Cobham, who used a 385-horsepower machine.

Hinkler's flight was the more remarkable by reason of the fact that he arrived at each stopping point enroute on time. He did not have to make a single repair, didn't suffer a bit of engine trouble and his entire outlay for his transportation was less than $250 for gasolene and oil.

With such a start, and assuming that the two French fliers, Costes and Le Brix, will complete their flight back to Paris with the same superb courage and ability their flight thus far has demonstrated them to possess, the year, 1928, may prove as productive of new aviation records as has the year so lately closed. In any event, the feat of this young native of Australia just concluded, will make the year out of the commonplace in aviation if it stands alone.

There is one phase of Hinkler's flight which may, but should not, be overlooked—the preparedness of the British for aerial travel. Wherever he landed on British soil he found a fine landing field. Between India and Australia he made stops at tiny little islands, mere stepping-stones—possibly it were better to say mere stopping stones—but he found a landing field on each. Britain already has prepared for the flying machine as a regular method of transportation.

Power Trust Investigation.

Despite the desperate protests of Senator Walsh, of Montana, the senate last week voted, forty-six to thirty one, to refer the proposed "power trust" probe to the Federal Trade commission instead of authorizing an investigation by a special committee of five senators as proposed by Mr. Walsh, which, in line with the course of procedure followed by the senate, would have meant another investigating committee headed by the senator from Montana.

The action taken directs the Federal Trade commission to inquire into and report to the senate "within each thirty days after the passage of this resolution and finally upon completion of its investigation" on the financing of electric and gas companies furnishing power and light in interstate business.

No matter what the original proposal might have been in its purpose, the vote on the amendment upon which favorable action was taken was wholly non partisan. The amendment, which was offered by Senator George, Democrat, of Georgia, was opposed by twenty Democrats and eleven Republicans, the latter largely of the so called variety, and supported by twenty-eight Republicans and eighteen Democrats.

Possibly a strong factor in bringing about the action taken was the realization by those who supported the amendment—a realization either not appreciated by the senate reactionaries or defied by them—that the country is sick and tired of senate investigations, some of which have been for partisan advantage, some to harass private enterprise and promote government ownership and control and some, seemingly, for pure love of investigating. None of them has been constructive in purpose and all of them have been long drawn out and costly.

And frequently when such investigations are concluded, the public knows little more in the way of facts than it did at the time of their inception, save, of course, their cost. As an illustration, the plan of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette to take over the railroads and other public utilities may be cited. The late Mr. La Follette was a champion of government ownership of public utilities. At the time, he and his followers didn't want to take the railroads over at their investment costs because prices of labor and material were declining and they thought they could be reproduced for less money than had been invested in them. With this idea in mind, the La Follette railroad valuation act was passed in 1913. At that time Mr. La Follette estimated that it would take three years to do he work and cost the government $2,400,000 and the railroads a like amount. The Interstate Commerce commission, to which the job was committed, figured that the work would take from five to seven years and cost from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. To make a long story short, the cost of the job to date has been $30,000,000 to the government and $100,000,000 to the railroads, and it isn't finished yet, and probably never will be, and if it is the report will not be worth anything when completed owing to depreciation in some cases and improvements and appreciation in others. But we aren't hearing much at this time from the proponents of the plan to buy the railroads at their reproduction cost for the reason that the cost of labor and materials has advanced so greatly since 1913 that it would be far cheaper to buy them at their investment cost.

The investigation brought about by Mr La Follette's plan for government ownership of the railroads has been more costly than most, but practically all of them are tarred with the same stick of ineffectiveness, which has caused the senate investigation business to become something of a stench in the nostrils of the public. The public is tired of them, and it was doubtless recognition of this fact which caused Senator Bruce, Democrat, of Maryland, in supporting the George amendment, to condemn the increasing tendency of the senate to investigate "everything under the sun."

"The senate is drunk with its investigating powers," Senator Bruce declared. "Some people take as much pleasure in investigation as others do in intoxication. It is now high time that the senate investigates itself."

It may be noted that we have not herein questioned the desirability of an investigation of the electric and gas companies engaged in interstate business. The explanation is that we feel that an investigation might strike pay dirt of value to the public, that there is ground for the belief that the public is being held up. But we would not have such an investigation by the United States senate. No matter what the senate's finding might be, the fact that it was the senate's finding would be prejudicial to any finding made.

While it is true that various organizations over in Indiana are demanding the resignation of Governor Jackson, doubtless the governor will point out that all such demands are barred by the statute of limitations.

A Berlin cable says the releasing of alien property by the United States has resulted in comment by but one paper on the fair play of the United States, the German press as a whole, singing a song of triumph. Well, why not? It must be remembered that the German press has had mighty few occasions to sing a song like that, in recent years.

Assistant United States District Attorney Mary Bailey told the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs that the Mann act, intended to save ignorant women and immigrant girls has been turned into an instrument of blackmail by the very women it was enacted to protect. Of course, Miss Bailey didn't hold out that its use for blackmailing purposes was limited to the two classes mentioned. Mary is too wise for that.

Against the record of 1925, when 2,001 employes purchased stock of a par value of $718,900, and that of 1926, when 2,677 employes purchased $848,000 worth of stock, 3,277 employes of the International Paper company purchased stock in the company in 1927 to the amount of $1,084,000. And thus the blending of "labor" and "capital" goes on.

To Prevent Gravel and Stones.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Every week or so somebody writes to ask about the causes and treatment of stone in the kidney or bladder. It is rather a common ailment, much more common, indeed, than may be generally believed.

The reason why I say this is because many persons have trouble of this sort and never know it. These stones may be present and yet produce no pronounced symptoms.

Kidney stone or gavel is due to a deposit in the kidney of a mass which really consists of one of the constituents of the urine. This solid substance may be in the body or in the cavity of the kidney.

The masses vary in size. They may be like grains of sand, or small gravel stones, or be big as walnuts. There may be one such substance, or there may be many.

There are three combinations of chemicals most at fault for the formation of renal calculus, the name given to the trouble by the doctors.

Uric acid is the chief offender. The stones or granules consisting of uric acid are hard, smooth and reddish in color. "Red sand in the urine" is a common way of describing the tiny particles which pass away with the urine.

Oxalate of lime is another substance which may build a stone in the kidney. The oxalate stones are hard and gray in color. Usually they are round and smooth, but sometimes they have a rough surface, resembling the mulberry. In this case they are called "mulberry calculi."

The third substance which may cause stone is phosphate of lime. Such stones are likely to build out like coral and may fill the entire cavity of the kidney, actually making a cast of it. In my opinion, faulty diet has much to do with the development of renal calculus. Correction of the eating habits is an important step in the treatment.

If you suspect you have gravel, or any form of kidney or bladder stone, you should go to your doctor. Tell him all about your symptoms.

The first thing he will do is to examine the urine. He will wish to find out what particular salts are there in excessive quantities. Then he will outline the treatment and advise what is best to be done in your particular case.

As to the diet, the doctor will be governed by what the test of the urine showed. If there is an excess of uric acid, the uric acid producing foods will be restricted. The first one to be thought of will be meat, particularly the organs, notably sweetbreads, kidney, liver and brain.

Smoked, spiced and highly seasoned food, rich pastry and coffee will be avoided. Fats and sugars should be taken in moderation, but vegetables, fruits and milk should be taken freely.

Vegetables, especially spinach and rhubarb, must be temperately taken in the oxalate form. Strawberries, figs, apples and pears should be forgotten. In the phosphate type, meat may be taken, but the vegetables must be limited.

In an case, do not overeat and be sure to drink lots of soft water. This is good advice, too, to prevent having stones in the kidney.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

M. G. B. Q—What will keep the face from drying? After washing with soap and water my face feels drawn and there are lines visible.

A—Probably use too drying a soap. Try using pure castile, and see whether or not you notice results. A good cold cream applied at night should keep the skin tender and soft. — Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Poems That Live.

DOWN THE DIM RIVER.

Stars trembling near us and sunset before us,
  Mountains in shadow and forests asleep;
Down the dim river we float on forever,
  Speak not, ah breathe not—there's peace on the deep.

Come not, pale sorrow, flee till tomorrow.
  Rest softly falling o'er eyelids that weep;
While down the river we float on forever,
  Speak not, ah, breathe not—there's peace on the deep.

As the waves cover the depths we glide over,
  So let the past in forgetfulness sleep,
While down the river we float on forever,
  Speak not, ah, breathe not—there's peace on the deep.

Heaven shines above us, bless all that love us;
  All whom we love in thy tenderness keep!
While down the river we float on forever,
  Speak not, ah, breathe not—there's peace on the deep.

Editorial Comment.

SOBER SECOND THOUGHT.

Signs are apparent in Europe that the snap judgment of certain newspapers over there to the effect that our Nicaraguan arbitrament is a piece of "American imperialism" is yielding to a knowledge of the facts. This view, indeed, could not last, if any pains at all were taken to obtain precise information concerning the matter. An important articles in the Paris Temps of January 31 is an indication of the change. Le Temps is not a journal whose views of American affairs are governed by any partiality for our country. It has been severe in its comments on the debt question. It is nevertheless able to inform itself in matters of international news, of which subject it makes a specialty. It is interesting to read the Temps article in question, which is entitled "The Imperialism of the United States," and from which the translate the following passages:

"The natural expansion—of the economic influence of the United States—does not lead us, as apparently it does too many minds, to denounce American imperialism. At this moment, too many are forgetting that the troops of the United States which are acting in Nicaragua, for instance, are there because they are calltd there by the contending parties, unanimously desiring that the ballot boxes shall be confided to an impartial arbitrament. The belated resistance of one man is what keeps up the present hostilities. To maintain the right of peoples to govern themselves does not by any means imply the "right" of easy assassination. . . .

"It is only by an absolute absurd kind of phariseeism that any one can protend to forbid the major powers from intervening in the affairs of those who are incapable of maintaining any sort of moral order among themselves. Such a pretension, which in certain circles has been made a sort of act of democratic faith, would merely result in permitting the collective accomplishment of crimes that are severely punished when committed by individuals. The day will come when the universal conscience will consider civil wars as equally abominable with international wars. Then only will peace reign in the world. For the present, those who admit the warfare of classes and factions, with their result in wholesale murders, stupidly affect to blame nations that seek to impose some sort of respect for law on barbarous peoples. Such a view as that can not last long."

Our own agitators who want to know "what the marines are doing in Nicaragua" might do well to consider the sources of information which are here shown to be accessible to French students of the subject.—Boston Transcript.

HIGH COSTS AT NATIONAL PARKS.

An interesting plan for reducing the high cost of visiting the various national parks was approved at a meeting of the responsible officials of such parks, held at Los Angeles.

The cost of seeing this part of America first was almost as great as seeing Europe up to about ten years ago. The expense of transportation to such a park as the Yellowstone was high and to tour it with the horse-drawn carry-alls on arriving took five or six days at a heavy per diem and scant consideration was given on the roads and elsewhere to the "sagers" who came in their own wagons with camping outfit. The admission of motor vehicles in 1915 enabled much more to be seen in a less time and if the cost for visitors stopping at the permanent camps, instead of the hotels, was somewhat reduced it was still not inconsiderable.

"Facilities for every pocketbook," is the motto guiding the park officials in planning the new policy. A five-year construction program must be completed before the aim is fully attained, but the poor man is to be welcomed to the parks and made comfortable and he is just the man who ought to visit the parks. The new policy fits well into the automobile age. Students, heads of families in limited circumstances, others with more vacation time than money can make their way to the parks in their flivvers and view the wonders unhurriedly and without financial strain. Best of all, perhaps, the children need not be left behind, as they so often have been when they would bring total per capita costs up to an embarrassing figure.

And, assuming a scale of prices proportioned to lean purses, where else can children or adults obtain so much of instruction and enjoyment for so little money?—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Mother Goose and Shakespeare.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

The French have a "Shakespeare Mystery," too. In the "Revue des Deux Mondes" Emile Henriot asks "Who wrote Perrault's stories?" —De qui sont les Contes de Perrault—and concludes that it was not the man who has been handed down by literary history as their author but his son, Pierre Darmancour.

He appears to make out a very good case for this upsetting conclusion—though in fact, the idea is not original with him, having been suggested more than fifty years ago by Paul Lacroix. But there is nothing more hard-shelled than literary tradition. After commentors, editors and eulogists have trodden in one another's footsteps for some centuries, beating down a hard track of petrified gush about some famous author, the latest representatives of the clan dislike excessively to be disturbed in which they regard as vested interests of literary history, and fight viciously to keep out any new discordant light. This has been abundantly shown in the extinguishable controversy over the real authorship of the wonderful plays and poems so long credited without question to William Shakespeare, of Stratford.

Perrault is not by any means so distinguished a name as Shakespeare, but it has, nevertheless, been crowned with very high honor, not only in France but throughout the world wherever people have been led, admiringly and tenderly, to ask after the author of "Cinderella," "Little Red Riding Hood," "Puss in Boots," "Blue Beard," "The Sleeping Beauty," and the other immortal "Tales of Mother Goose," that thrilled our souls and filled our eyes when we were children. It was a crown delightful to wear that got put upon the head of Charles Perrault, and which, it appears, he made no effort to displace. An excuse may be found for him in the fact that, anyhow, it was only a family affair. If the son, still but a youth, composed the stories and the father touched them up and saw that they got published, was it literary robbery for the father to allow the public to believe that he was the sole author?

In any case, as M Henriot suggests there was no deception in the name "Contes de Perrault." The question might have been asked "Which Perrault, the father or the son?" But "the general reader doesn't trouble himself with such scruples, he knows only one Perrault, the author of the 'Stories,' crowned with a blinding glory. So the 'Stories of Perrault' are not of the Perrault that one thought, but they are all the same the 'Stories of Perrault.'" It is in substance the same conclusion advocated by the humorist, Mark Twain, concerning the Shakespearian drama, which is, he says, not the drama of Shakespeare, but of another author who called himself by the same name."

The Shakespeare controversy, however, goes much deeper than this simple case of the authorship of the "Mother Goose Stories." The latter has no special plot, the mistake would seem to have arisen rather from carelessness or indifference. And, anyhow, as already said, it was all in the family. But in the matter of Shakespeare the charge is far more serious. There, if the challenge is well founded, was a plot for deliberate deception, and William Shakespeare of Stratford, was only a "man of straw" utilized as a screen by one or several authors, who had their reasons for keeping in the background. In the phantasmagoria of suggestion, complot, political and social intrigue, ambition, and personal concealment, woven about the case by the authors of the attack on the authenticity of the received "Shakespeare," we catch disappearing and reappearing glimpses of Bacon, Raleigh, Spencer and other famous literary and political characters, and nothing seems really established except a growing suspicion that there must be something wrong in the accepted Shakespeare tradition. — Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Sir William Bennett—Composer.

BY COZZETTE DOUGLASS.

While no lofty operas rear a majestic monument to the memory of Sir Sterndale Bennett, yet the quality and loveliness of the music which he has given to posterity serves to keep ever before us the name of this man who ranks among the foremost of the English composers.

Sterndale Bennett was born at Sheffield on April 13, 1816. His father, an organist, dying when Bennett was three years old, the boy's education was directed by his grandfather, from whom he received his first musical education. When he was eight years old, he entered the choir of the King's college chapel, and in 1926 entered the Royal Academy of Music, where he studied for ten years. During this time he played an original pianoforte concerto which was later published by the academy.

In 1837 he went to Leipzig, and it was during his stay in Germany that he met Mendelssohn and Schumann.

In 1844 he married Mary Anne Wood and in 1819 he founded the Bach society.

Bennett's friendship with Mendelssohn had a wide influence on his compositions, and Schumann wrote a most enthusiastic account of his, Bennett's, rendition of his third pianoforte concerto.

After his success on the continent, Bennett returned to England, devoting himself to teaching.

In 1856 he was made musical professor at Cambridge and in the same year was engaged as permanent conductor of the Philharmonic society, a post which he held until 1866 when he became principal of the Royal Academy of Music.

In 1871 Bennett was knighted and the following year he was the recipient of a public testimonial at St. James' hall, the proceeds of the testimonial being devoted to the founding of a scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music.

While the list of Bennett's published works is small, his absolute mastery of musical form, particularly in his pianoforte compositions, places them in a high niche in the musical world.

Night Coughs Quickly Relieved

Stopped in 15 Minutes with Thoxine

Most coughing is caused by an irritated, inflamed throat or bronchial tubes which cough syrups and patent medicines do not touch. But a famous physician's prescription recently discovered called Thoxine goes direct to the cause, relieves the inflamed membranes and stops the cough almost instantly. One swallow does the work, and the remarkable thing about it is that it contains no dope, chloroform or other harmful drugs. Pleasant tasting. Safe for children. Once used the whole family will rely on it. 35c., 60c. and $1.00. Bradley's Drug Store and all good druggists.—Adv.

CHAPTER 32

"VERY well, then," decided Bob Kingsley instantly, "we'll hold [illegible] of the path—or, at least, I [illegible]" he added with a grim smile. [illegible] what you say. I fancy it's a bit [illegible] matter getting down to the [illegible] and if you had to carry two [illegible] you'd be in a proper fix. On [illegible] that, the schooner's boat, which, [illegible] I suppose you've left on the [illegible] couldn't hold us all. You'd have [illegible] two trips, and they'd have a [illegible] put those left on the beach, [illegible] going out in the boat. These [illegible] my orders, Nanu; and you, [illegible] will give heed to what I [illegible] will take the other revolver, [illegible] that Tifu says you have got, [illegible] and Kafan will load it for [illegible] we will lie behind the rocks [illegible] the head of the path. In [illegible] time you are to get Miss [illegible] and the schooner at once. [illegible] is done, send Nissan back [illegible] the boat; we will then be [illegible] will still have enough men [illegible] the schooner if things go [illegible] and—But we'll let all that [illegible] of itself when the time comes! [illegible] are not to return! I have [illegible] you that if I run out of [illegible] have to sail the Alita to [illegible]"

"[illegible] why cannot I take the Tuan's [illegible] the head of the path?" [illegible] Nanu anxiously. "The Tuan [illegible] Alita as no other man sails [illegible]"

"[illegible] it's my job," Bob Kingsley [illegible] with finality. "Because you [illegible] to be carried; because Miss [illegible] first of all, and no chances can be taken, and no time can be lost. You understand, Nanu? You are to start down for the beach the moment we reach Miss Lyle!"

"I understand, Tuan," Nanu answered heavily. "And it shall be as the Tuan orders, but I wish it were not so."

"Never mind about that!" Bob Kingsley was biting off his words now. "Hand that other revolver to Tifu—one's all I can manage at a time with these damned bracelets! Good Lord, how much farther is it? You said we were close to the place!"

"Even so, Tuan," replied Nanu, "and it——" His words ended in a startled gasp, as suddenly and in rapid succession there came the reports of several revolver shots.

Bob Kingsley's face was white, as he reached out his manacled hand and caught Nanu's arm.

"Those shots came from over there to the right, and a little ahead of us!" he said tensely. "Have they worked in around us—got there before we have?"

"No, Tuan," Nanu answered, "for see, we are here! But the shots were very close."

Bob Kingsley drew in his breath sharply. An instant before there had been nothing but trees around him—now he was suddenly in an open space across which, some ten yards away, great, rugged walls of rock rose high in front of him. And then his glance fell upon the three remaining members of the Alita's crew who stood close at hand. Two of them slung a hammock from their shoulders. There was a figure in the hammock. The lower part of the face was wrapped about with a cloth—but a pair of eyes met his. A lifetime seemed to pass in a second. Another shot came. A bullet whined. The expression in those eyes! Not fear! They seemed to blaze at him, as though the soul they windowed were aflame with fury.

"Quick, Nanu!" he prompted under his breath.

The hammock, Nanu, and the three men were gone—they seemed to have disappeared as though into the earth itself. Then, in turn, his own hammock was borne quickly forward—but only for a short distance. An instant later, it was set down upon the ground.

Tifu spoke:

"Crawl behind this rock, Tuan, and make all haste!"

It seemed at first like the entrance to some weird cavern, but in a moment, with Tifu and Kafan lying stretched out at full length on each side of him, Bob Kingsley had got his bearings. There was no earth beneath him any more—only rock; and the angle at which he lay, with his feet so much lower than his head, was indicative enough that the downward trend of the ground here was perilously steep. Overhead, as though a roof had been riven apart, there showed a narrow streak of moonlight, and he saw that he lay at the opening of a great fissure in the cliff. In front of him was a rampart of broken rocks—and beyond these, save for the short stretch of open ground that he had just traversed, the trees and woods were thick in all directions.

And now, suddenly, flashes, red-tongued in the darkness, came stabbing out from amongst the trees, and there was the spat of lead as it flattened itself against the rocks that sheltered both himself and the two men beside him; but it took scarcely more than a glance to satisfy Bob Kingsley that his position here in the narrow opening was practically impregnable. The Chinamen could not rush across the clearing without suffering two or three casualties at least—and they were only five all told! They would not attempt it. His jaws snapped together. If they only would!

"Keep your revolver loaded and hand it to me when mine is empty, Tifu," he said. "I think, even with my wrists linked, I am a better shot than you are, and we won't waste any more ammunition than we can help."

He began to fire coolly and methodically at the flashes as they spurted out from the trees. He emptied his revolver, passed it to Tifu, and took Tifu's in return—but he did not fire any more now. He couldn't hit them there amongst the trees—there wasn't a chance in a thousand. The situation was an impasse. Neither one could attack the other.

And then he smiled suddenly, not pleasantly, to himself. Cagey birds! perhaps, though, he could match wits with them—and win. A fair shot at any one of them, preferably Chen-shu, would be very much worth while, even if what he proposed to do now resulted in nothing more.

"Tifu," he said in low, quick tones, "we could hold this place forever, but that won't get us aboard the Alita. We've got to work our way down to the beach little by little so that when the boat returns we will not be too far away to make a dash for it. Say this, then, to Kafan, for I do not speak Malay well enough. Tell him to go down until he finds a place where the path twists sharply and where we could again hold it against those above; but let him not go any great distance, for it must be a place to which you and Kafan can carry me quickly. Tell him to go with the utmost silence, but on his way back let him set a stone rolling down amongst the rocks. One stone only, Tifu—as though we were retreating with all caution, but through ill fortune had set the stone in motion to betray us. And so, if nothing more, perhaps we can tempt them out from the trees. You understand?"

"It is well said, O Master!" Tifu answered excitedly—and spoke rapidly in Malay to Kafan.

And then Kafan, without a sound, was gone.

The flashes were still coming from amongst the trees, the bullets were still spattering venomously against the rocks; but it seemed to Bob Kingsley, as he lay there watching grimly, that the flashes were gradually drawing nearer to the outer fringe of the trees, as though Chen-shu and his followers, while still hesitating to show themselves, were encouraged by the absence of any return fire now, and were creeping up closer to the edge of the clearing.

A minute, perhaps two, went by; and then from somewhere behind Bob Kingsley a stone went rattling and rolling down the cleft, and, gaining momentum, finally smashed against something far below with a resonant crash—and echoes caught up the sound, and flung it ringing back and forth from rock wall to rock wall.

"Tuan, see!" Tifu whispered. "They take the bait!"

There was a twisted smile on Bob Kinbsley's lips. At the edge of the trees, queer and ghostlike in the moonlight, and each separated from the other by several yards, five white forms had come suddenly into view. If only he could tell which one was Chen-shu! But the figure in the center afforded the surest mark. He fired. A scream answered him. The figure dropped. And then with his elbows acting as a pivot on which his revolver turned, he pumped a bullet as fast as he could pull the trigger in the direction of each of the other four. Cries, more like squeals, squeals of mingled rage and fear, answered him; and, rising above these, the man who had been hit still screamed. But the white shapes had vanished.

Kafan spoke at his elbow:

"I am here, and I have found a place such as the Tuan ordered."

"Quick, then!" Bob Kingsley ordered. "Carry me there—the two of you! But be careful whatever you do now not to make a sound. I don't think those blighters will show their hides again as long as they believe we are still here, but if they tumble to what we're doing, they'll be after us like a pack of wildcats before we can get into position again!"

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

THERE was apparently nothing but his usual smooth smiling courtesy in Philip Veritzen's reception of Lillian's gibing invitation to renew his youth by gathering driftwood with her. But I was standing near enough to him to catch a glimpse of the tiny spark of resentment which flamed for an instant away back in his brilliant dark eyes, and then vanished again. Although the great producer does not cheapen his dignity by aping the dress or mannerisms of extremely young men, I realized early in my acquaintance that he likes neither to remember that he has passed life's meridian, nor to be reminded of the fact.

To my surprise his poise was not proof against the temptation to return Lillian's thrust.

"Is that your reason for going?" he asked, smiling.

The little laugh which she gave him in answer was more malicious than any retort could have been.

"Of course," she said. "I never miss an opportunity of joining the gambols of youth."

"But suppose I prefer the society of the youngest person in the party," he returned, with a gallant little bow to Mother Graham.

My mother-in-law laughed, with a sprightly little wave of the hand at him.

"My dear man," she said, "you know all children should have a nap in the afternoon. I'm going to take mine now. Go on and gather driftwood or sea shells. I shall be perfectly all right."

"She will have a faithful companion at her feet," Katherine put in, smiling. "I have the first symptoms of a headache which will be all right if I coddle it, but which would spoil me for the party if I gathered driftwood in the sun. So I'm going to stretch out on the sand and rest."

"Otto!" Mr. Veritzen called quickly, and the man on his way back to the car, turned obediently.

"Bring down the robe and the car pillows," he said, and the man nodded comprehensively, touched his hat, and hurried to the car.

"Otto will see that you are perfectly comfortable," he said to Katherine. "And if you are sure you don't mind"—he bowed deferentially to my mother-in-law.

"I shall be asleep before you're out of sight," she told him.

"In that case"—Mr. Veritzen caught Lillian's hand—"let us gather the driftwood while we may. Of course you are coming with us, Mrs. Graham?"

His manner was perfect in its gradation: the utmost deference to Mother Graham, the familiarity of years of comradeship with Lillian, and to me the perfect courtesy of social acquaintanceship which is not of long enough duration to be termed friendship. But I had the disturbing consciousness that his attitude toward me was for my mother-in-law's benefit alone, and resentfully observed the quirking of Lillian's lips which told me that she too was discounting his elaborate formality.

For awhile I could not fathom my friend's purpose in dragging my stately employer along the beach to pick up driftwood when there were already so many younger helpers engaged in the task. Then I remembered Lillian's gamin-like propensity for making things uncomfortable for some one who had incurred her displeasure. She was thoroughly annoyed at Philip Veritzen for what she considered his unwarrantable interference with the youthful idyll of his son and Mary Harrison, and not wishing to tax him with his offense, she had taken this absurd way of punishing him without his guessing that he was being disciplined.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Jubilee's Pardner

* * *

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

I AM glad Friday is over with. It is the last day of the week but one, and that one is worth all the other ones put together. I let Jubilee down in a snowstorm this morning, which shows that winter is not yet over.

When I had fixed the fires and milked the dummed brutes and had brang in the milk to strain it, I guess the back door was not locked as tight as it should be, and the wind blew it open. Annabelle Lee was scooting around the kitchen on her scooter and she made for the door and my mother dropped the pan of pancake batter and made a run for her, but Annabelle gave a couple of quick little jumps and that took the wheels over the sill and the next minute she was on her way down the steps on her face. My mother was setting on the ground by her, feeling of her all over to see if she was hurt, and Annabelle stopped crying. My father came out and helped my mother to get up and told her she had better feel of herself to see if she was hurt, and I guess she was because she rubbed some anarchy on her. My ant made some toast and we had toast and eggs and bacon and coffee, only I had milk. My ant ain't any good at pancakes—and a lot of other things.

Younias came over with the bunch and said her mother is all right only she ain't got any eyelashes or eyebrows. Her face is red all except around the eyes and places where she squinched it up and made wrinkles and she hurt herself where she fell over the chair. She says the hot water heater is one of the smartest things she ever saw. She said if anyone goes upstairs and turns on the hot water faucet the hot water heater makes a big blaze right away to heat the water. We didn't believe her, so she had us stop at her house, and her mother was limping around and Younias turned on the hot water faucet in the kitchen and the blaze went up right away. Then she went upstairs where it couldn't see her or hear her or know what she was doing, and when she turned it on up went the blaze. I think it is pretty smooth to [illegible] when she wants hot water and [illegible] she wants cold.

ARTHUR HAND MAY SOON KNOW FATE

Galion Bank Robbery Case Is Expected To Go to Jury Late Today

Bucyrus, Feb. 24 — Arthur Hand, charged with being implicated in the $175,000 robbery of the Galion Commercial Savings Bank last June 28, will likely know his fate before another day breaks.

Hand was on the witness stand this morning and in his testimony claimed that he spent the day of the robbery, June 28, in Toledo. In the morning, he said, he visited a dentist's office and had some dental work done. During the afternoon, he said, he looked over a number of cigar stores in which he might find employment or buy. In the evening, according to his testimony, he went to the home of his blind sweetheart, Miss Theressa Hartman, where he remained for the night. This testimony was corroborated yesterday afternoon by Miss Hartman and her father and brother who were placed on the witness stand by the defense. Where Hand had spent the afternoon and morning, the witnesses were unable to testify.

A Dr. Smith, a Toledo dentist, and his wife were placed on the stand yesterday afternoon to identify receipts for dental fees which Hand claims were paid to Dr. Smith on June 28. Both the dentist and his wife testified that Hand was in the Toledo office on the morning of June 28.

Following the cross examination of Hand this morning the state called two rebuttal witnesses and then rested its case at 11:05 o'clock.

The trial was to be resumed at 12:30 o'clock at which time the pleas of the prosecution and defense attorneys were to begin. The trial is expected to go to the jury late this afternoon.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS BACK COUNTY BOARD

Stand of Commissioners on Elimination Question Approved by Unanimous Vote

ports showed that the most extensive township road improvement program in the history of the county is planned for this year.

The prospects are that within the next five years, Marion County will have a complete improved road system, Surveyor Leavens stated following the meeting. Some sort of hard surface, he said, is planned for every mile of public thoroughfare, so that when the work is finished there will not be a single mud road remaining in the county.

Work Scheduled

Township road improvement work already scheduled for this year included two roads in Tully Township, two in Claridon Township, two in Salt Rock, two in Grand, two in Bowling Green and one in Pleasant.

Township trustees, Leavens says, are enthusiastic in their plans for improvements intended to lift every section of the county "out of the mud."

For the purpose of assisting in this program here and in other counties of Ohio, the township officials adopted a resolution urging the legislature at its next session to provide state aid for township road work under provisions of the Green Law, enacted in 1923.

Provisions of Law

The Green law authorizes state aid of not less than $1,000 for each township. An appropriation made at the last legislature was vetoed by Governor Donahey.

In the resolution adopted yesterday, the legislature is requested to provide the state aid from funds which are now available and which are not subject to the governor's veto. The money, it was stated, is available from the gasoline tax and other sources.

The resolution was introduced by William B. Guitteau of Columbus, secretary of the Ohio Crushed Stone Association, after he had given a talk explaining the Green law and its provisions. Mr. Guitteau was present as a substitute for a representative of the state auditor's office, who was scheduled for an address but was unable to attend.

Motion Pictures

Motion pictures showing road improvement equipment in operation were shown by representatives of the J. D. Adams Co. of Indianapolis and the Galion Iron Works of Galion. The Galion company's pictures also gave scenes in the factory, showing the manufacturing process.

The remainder of the meeting was taken up with a general discussion of township road work and the system of co-operation under which the county assists in the projects. It is this plan, inaugurated in Marion County last year, which is making it possible to give the county a complete road system.

The discussions, led by County Surveyor Leavens, also included instructions from him regarding the township trustees' duties in maintaining the highways in proper repair.

a consequence does not provide the speed and power which is believed to be possible with the Cowardin atomizing system.

The Cowardin engine also has the advantage of being smaller and lighter weight than the present Diesel models. Low priced fuel can be used, assuring economy in operation.

Should the final tests prove satisfactory, the engine is expected to be manufactured for general use in motor driven machinery and vehicles.

The Cowardin engine came to the attention of officials of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. for the first time about two years ago. At that time, Samuel P. Cowardin and his son had assembled a one-cylinder engine and were operating it in their shop at Richmond, Va.

Given Tests

This engine was brought to the local factory and given thorough tests which indicated possibilities of successful development.

Since then engines of various sizes have been constructed and tried out and every possible test employed to assure effective operation and ascertain what changes were needed. The engine now in operation is of the six-cylinder type and has a 90-horsepower capacity.

HOPE FOR MERGER

Coal Operators of West Virginia Agree To Permit Appraisal

Morgantown, W. Va., Feb. 24—Coal operators representing approximately two-thirds of the coal production here in 1927 today agreed to permit appraisal of their plants with the ultimate end in view of bringing about a gigantic merger.

All said they were in favor of the merger, but reserved the right to reject appraisal and remain outside the new organization. The Consolidation Coal Co., one of the largest firms in this district, is sponsoring the plan.

The operators will meet again within a month, to discuss the proposition further.

PLAN FUNERAL FOR TRACTION CAR VICTIM

Coroner Says Miss Mary Lill, 62, Dies of Fractured Skull

Arrangements are being made today for the funeral services of Miss Mary Lill, 62, Pleasant Township resident who met almost instant death near her home, five miles south of the city yesterday afternoon when she was struck by a southbound C., D. & M. interurban car. The body is to be removed late this afternoon from the Hess, Markert & Axe funeral home on E. Church-st to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Keil, south of the city, where Miss Lill resided. She was a sister of Mrs. Keil.

Coroner B. D. Osborn conducted an autopsy at the undertaking parlors yesterday afternoon and found that death was due to a fractured skull.

Miss Lill, according to accounts of David E. Saunders, a Hocking Valley railroad watchman and several other men who witnessed the accident, state that she stepped directly into the path of the interurban car as it neared the Prospect-pk.

They are of the opinion that her attention was attracted by a Hocking Valley freight train coming from the south and for that reason did not see the interurban car. The fact that her hearing was defective and that she wore a head covering which might have obscured her vision are also regarded as circumstances which possibly contributed to the accident.

F. M. Smith of Delaware, motorman of the car, a local which left here at 2 o'clock, stated that he saw Miss Lill at the side of the track but thought that she was waiting for it to pass.

Struck by Corner

The car was brought to a stop several hundred feet from the scene of the accident. It was in charge of Conductor H. A. Powell, of Delaware.

Witnesses of the accident state that Miss Lill had stepped to the edge of the track and was struck by a corner of the car.

She was on her way to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Furniss, carrying food to a friend who was ill, and had taken a short cut across field from her home.

Miss Lill was born in Pleasant Township, where she had been a lifelong resident. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lill, both of whom are deceased.

Gas on Stomach Is Dangerous

Bisurated Magnesia Gives Speedy Relief or Money Back

Gas, Pain, Bloating and a feeling of fullness after eating are almost certain evidence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach.

Too much acid irritates the delicate stomach lining, frequently causing chronic Gastritis and dangerous Ulcers. Food ferments and sours, forming a gas that distends the stomach and often seriously affects the Heart.

It is genuine folly to neglect such a condition or to treat with artificial digestive aids that cannot neutralize the stomach acid. A better way is to get from Henney & Cooper, Bradley's or any reliable drug store some Bisurated Magnesia (powder or tablets) and take a little after each meal. This famous but simple and inexpensive stomach sweetener and anti-acid can be depended upon to prove its value in less than five minutes or the druggist is authorized to promptly return your money. Pleasant and perfectly harmless to use—Bisurated Magnesia does give wonderful relief in nine out of ten cases. Ask your Doctor or Druggist.—Adv.

-o- The New Book -o-

By FRANCES JENNINGS

FROM the pen of Booth Tarkington, just a year after publication of "The Plutocrat," comes another delightful story—"Claire Ambler", this time an intimate glimpse into the life of a flapper growing into young womanhood.

One first sees Claire as a high school girl on a summer vacation, a holiday that to her means another grand opportunity to win the just approval of the opposite sex, the period in her life when the man at a distance never failed to appear far more attractive than the one at her side. Tarkington's clever depicting of this flapper's empty conversation—so typical of a certain type of young girl of the present day, is one of the best bits of character portrayal Tarkington has done—quite on a par with his still vividly remembered pictures of "Penrod" and "Willie Baxter", the irresistible young hero of "Seventeen."

Tarkington next pictures Claire on another summer vacation in a Mediterranean town, still a heart-breaker, a coquette in the finest sense of the term.

Abruptly Ends Tale

Finally at the age of 25, when she is beginning to have the qualms of a young woman whose friends are all happily marrying about her and to whom life has not yet brought forth her ideal in a mate, Tarkington abruptly ends this odd little biography and leaves his latest creation, an attractive young woman to whom flapperism is a lost art, the happy bride of a man of middle age.

It is interesting to speculate what Mr. Tarkington's next novel will be, for one feels sure after some 30 years of feeding the reading public with such wholesome novels as are mentioned above Tarkington will not retire for a number of years. His first publications, shortly after graduation from Princeton, were "Mousieur Beaucaire", and "The Gentleman from Indiana." He passed through the period when "Penrod" and "Penrod and Sam" were produced, into the time when "The Magnificent Ambersons" and "The Turmoil" became his most talked-of books. His later publication, "Claire Ambler" came as the first book from the presses of Doubleday, Doran & Co., a new book firm formed from merger of Doubleday, Page & Doran.

AFTERMATH OF WAR TOUCHED BY GIBBS

SIR PHILIP GIBBS, whose stories of the Great war remain among the most vivid and moving interpretations of the catastrophe in the terms of the individual, writes about the aftermath in his new book, "Out of the Ruins," which Doubleday, Doran have just published. The volume contains nine little novels: the title story of young Yvonne whose love had made a deserter of her beloved; "The Wandering Birds," the extraordinary romance of Hans Ritter and Elsa Windt who were among the first martyrs of the Wandervogel, the boys and girls who after the war wandered from town to town and village to village singing and dancing in return for food and a night's lodging.

Also the drama of Joan Saville who went a-gypsying in Budapest; the story of the supernatural lady; the tragedy of Hop-o'-my'Thumb and the Fascisti; the romance of the lad with the unfortunate face; "The School of Courage"; the girl at the Sign of the Crooked Cross and the tale of Jasper who could not stand success. Through the turmoil and despair and confusion of post-war Europe, Mr. Gibb's figures move with a vivid inevitability that is not far removed from tragedy.

FLORIDA COLLEGE GIRL WRITES FIRST NOVEL

A Florida college girl, Edith Everett Taylor, has written a frank novel of the younger generation in "Not Magnolia," published Feb. 10 by Dutton's. The new book tells of a "crush" between two girls that has its obvious implications and of another young woman who chose life as the wife of a rising young novelist without breeding to stagnation as the wife of a neurotic young aristocrat.

The title of the novel comes from a negro song, which lets it be known that magnolia is for the dead; for the living there are "red-rose and yella flowahs."

Miss Taylor is a senior in the Florida State Woman's College at Tallahassee and is a native of St. Augustine. Although "Not Magnolia" is her first novel, she has already to her credit a book of verse, "The Black Lagoon."

Channing Pollock has written another play, "Mr. Monneypenny", of which he first conceived the idea 23 years ago. # Hoover Able to Please Both Wets and Drys With Views

NEITHER SIDE DISAPPOINTED

Believe Secretary of Commerce Has Not Harmed Himself in Ohio's Primary

Washington, Feb. 24—Herbert Hoover appeared today to have accomplished the seeming miracle of stating his position on prohibition without mortally offending either the fanatical drys or the wringing wets.

Neither side is entirely satisfied, but neither side is entirely disappointed. Hence the practical politicians of Washington were ready today to accord the palm to the cabinet candidate for the presidency for shrewdness in handling an explosive subject.

The drys publicly professed themselves satisfied with Mr. Hoover's assertion that he did not favor the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, and that he was in favor of the "efficient, vigorous and sincere" enforcement of all laws enacted thereunder.

Wets Satisfied, Too

The wets proclaimed themselves satisfied with the fact that Mr. Hoover conspicuously did not indorse the divine wisdom of the Volstead Act, nor did he state, as Senator Borah invited him to state, that he would oppose its modification. He pointedly ignored that part of the Borah questionnaire, and he was similarly silent on the question of whether he believed in letting each state establish its own definition of what is not intoxicating liquor under the Eighteenth Amendment. Thus he refused to mortgage his future on the broad question of modification.

Down deep, the drys are a little more dissatisfied with the Hoover letter than are the wets. But the fact is not being proclaimed from the housetops.

Anti-Saloon League officials privately voiced some disappointment over the fact that Mr. Hoover neglected to say he believed implicitly in the wisdom of the Volstead Law as other candidates, including Senator Willis and Senator Curtis, have done, but such comment was made in the confidence of private conversation and not publicly. Their disappointment lay in the fact that Mr. Hoover "did not go all the way" in indorsing prohibition "as is."

Subject of Controversy

The Hoover letter was the subject of considerable argument and controversy today in political quarters in the capital, although there was universal agreement that he handled a politically dangerous topic with a great deal of skill and tact.

The principal argument centered about, not only Mr. Hoover's failure to answer specifically two of Borah's most pointed questions, but about his closing observation, which was:

"Our country has deliberately undertaken a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far-reaching in purpose. It must be worked out constructively."

"This was regarded by some cynical politicans as almost as enigmatical as Mr. Coolidge's "I do not choose to run," for the question that the wets and drys were asking themselves was 'in what way lies construction?'"

Doesn't Hurt Himself

The drys, of course, believe that to work out the prohibition problem constructively means more rigid laws and more severe penalties. Conversely, the wets believe that construction and progress lie in the modification of the Volstead Law, and the enactment of laws under the Eighteenth Amendment that will command more universal respect. To their way of thinking beer-and-light-wines point the way to constructive enforcement and progress.

Which Mr Hoover himself believes he did not say.

There was unanimity among the politicans, however, that Mr. Hoover has not hurt himself in the approaching primary battle in Ohio with Senator Willis. There is considerable wet sentiment in Ohio, and Senator Willis is the Anti-Saloon League's spokesman on the Senate floor. Thus the wets they believe, will inevitably drift to the less dry of the two contenders.

Albatross Monoplane Forced Down Third Time on Long Flight

Imperial, Cal., Feb. 24—A fourth attempt to lower the world's mark for sustained flying will be made here within a few days, it was announced today by the pilots of the giant Kenith-Albatross monoplane, which was forced down yesterday after having remained aloft a little less than 10 hours.

Failure of the third attempt to break the endurance record was due to the snapping of a crystalized rocker arm in the right wing motor.

The pilots of the craft are Charles F. Rocheville, Alvin K. Peterson and Jack Reid.

DIRECT ACTION Gas Ranges with LORAIN

No other Gas Range Like It

MOST STOVES have only one burner to do for both oven and broiling. Direct Action Gas Ranges have a separate one for each. You can regulate the flame for broiling and the oven temperature for baking, independently of each other. With the Direct Action with Lorain Red Wheel, you can bake slowly and broil quickly at the same time.

Unless the Gas Range has a RED WHEEL it is NOT a LORAIN

No other stove has the "Elastic" oven that "stretches" so easily for additional capacity when you are having a party, a big baking or a lot of canning. Come in and ask us to demonstrate this feature.

There's no bottom in the Direct Action Oven. The measured heat acts directly on the baking—Direct Action. No heavy plates to pre-heat, nothing to break, warp or burn-out.

There's no other Gas Range like it—in appearance, convenience and economy of operation. Come and see.

AGOSTA MAN HELD IN ROBBERY AT DE CLIFF

Merle Carr, 33, Said by Officials To Have Confessed to Burglary

Merle Carr, 33, of Agosta, is a prisoner in County Jail and county officials report that they have in their possession a written confession signed by him in which he admits having burglarized the general store of Green Miller at DeCliff, on Wednesday night.

Carr was taken into custody about 15 hours after the burglary was committed following an investigation made by Sheriff James A. Deal and Deputy Vane Ireland.

Deal and Ireland responded to a call from the Miller store early yesterday morning after the proprietor had discovered his place had been burglarized and two hours later the sheriff and his deputy reported finding the stolen goods at the Carr home in Agosta.

Arrested by Marshal

Carr was away from home at the time and was arrested by Marshal Howard Carey of Agsota when he returned shortly before noon.

An affidavit charging burglary was filed against Carr in probate court by Sheriff Deal and he is scheduled for arraignment before Judge McNeal this afternoon.

Carr's confession was obtained, the sheriff says, at the office of Prosecuting Attorney Wiedemann yesterday afternoon. The prosecutor, sheriff and Deputy Ireland were present with the prisoner.

Carr confessed to the burglary of Wednesday night but denies that he had anything to do with two previous robberies which occurred at the Miller store within the last two months, the sheriff said.

In making his confession, Carr is reported to have said that he has been out of work and needed groceries and other supplies for his family. The goods stolen included sugar, flour and other merchandise, all valued at approximately $15.

The robbery took place between 8 and 9 o'clock, Wednesday night, according to Carr's reported confession, and he conveyed the merchandise to his home in his Ford touring car.

Suspicion centered on Carr when the sheriff, in his investigation, learned that he had been seen in DeCliff prior to the time of the robbery.

FIRST LADY BETTER

Mrs. Coolidge Leaves White House First Time in Month

Washington, Feb. 24—Mrs. Coolidge left the White House today for the first time since she was confined to her bed nearly a month ago with an attack of grippe complicated by neuralgia.

Accompanied by her friend, Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, of Boston, Mrs. Coolidge went motoring through Rock Creek Park and nearby Maryland. She appeared to be in good spirits and showed no material traces of her illness. Dr. Joel T. Boone, her physician, declared Mrs. Coolidge had practically recovered.

WRANGEL TO RETURN TO BATTLE SOVIET

Only Awaiting Opportunity To "Liberate" Russians; Has Army of 40,000

Brussels, Feb. 24—Baron Wrangel, who commanded one of the "white" armies which tried to overthrow the Russian Soviet government, told International News Service today that he is only awaiting another opportunity to return to Russia at the head of an army to fight the reds.

The baron claims to have an "army" of 40,000 men under his command. He says they are scattered over Europe but will unite when he gives the command. Baron Wrangel says he is "patiently waiting until the Russians rise up against Bolshevism as they rose against czarism." He claims that his fight is not actually against the Soviets, "but is to give the Russians their liberty."

Baron Wrangel broke his silence of nearly 10 years when he received the correspondent at his villa in Uccles, near Brussels, where he has been living in seclusion writing a history of his "white" army.

"I have 40,000 men under my command," he explained. "They are divided into squadrons. Each squadron has its chief. Every able bodied man has a job. Some are miners, longshoremen and taxi drivers. Others are actors and painters. Each contributes one per cent of his salary for the cause of victory. When one falls sick he is cared for out of a special fund."

Dies in Lima City Hospital Following Speeder Crash on Feb. 12

William Farada Wood, 31, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wood, 231 Owen-st, and a World War veteran, died yesterday morning at Lima City Hospital according to word received by relatives here today. Death came at 10:45 o'clock yesterday morning as a result of injuries received Sunday, Feb. 12, when he was thrown from a speeder as it jumped the track while enroute from Herrod to a wreck near Lima. Mr. Wood was employed as section foreman of the Erie Railroad at Herrod, where he had resided since leaving Marion three years ago.

Mr. Wood died of a broken back and fractured breastbone. His two companions in the accident were only slightly injured. The body was taken to his home in Herrod yesterday pending completion of funeral arrangements.

Mr. Wood was born March 10, 1897 in DeCliffe, the son of William and Eva Parker Wood, both of whom survive. His mother was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Parker of Agosta. Mr. Wood was a member of the Methodist Church and of the Masonic Lodge at Herrod. During the World War he engaged in service for 18 months, 14 months of which he spent in France. He attended Marion Business College and for several years was employed on the Marion division of the Erie. He was married in February of 1925 to Miss Edna Sheridan of LaRue.

Surviving are his widow, parents, a daughter, Noriene, 2, and four sisters, Mrs. Marjorie Weller of Youngstown, Mrs. Selma Boblenz of west of the city, Mrs. Gladys Houk, near Green Camp, and Mrs. Maude Tron of near Agosta. A sister, Lola Belle, and three brothers, Jesse, Aubrey and Jeremiah Wood, preceded him in death. Aubrey Wood was killed when struck by a train at DeCliffe and Jeremiah Wood, for six years a marine, was killed in active service during the World War.

SWEEPING CHANGES IN RADIO ARE URGED

Bill of Davis Would Divide Stations Equally Among Five Zones

Washington, Feb. 22—Sweeping changes in the radio broadcasting system of the nation will be forced if Congress enacts the new radio bill of the House Merchant Marine Committee, Representative Davis, Democrat of Tennessee, said today.

The bill, extending the life of the Federal Radio Commission for one year, requires the commission to divide stations and power equally among the five zones into which the country is apportioned.

An exhaustive examination had disclosed that the 701 broadcasting stations now doing business are concentrated in a few big cities and states, Davis said.

The biggest changes would be required in the first zone, including New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and New England. That zone now has 35 per cent of all radio broadcasting power and this would cut to 20 per cent under the bill, he said.

The fourth zone, including Chicago, and the northwest, has 27.31 per cent of all power and would also be cut to 20 per cent. The second zone, including Pennsylvania and mid-Atlantic states, would remain about the same while the central, southern and far western zones would double their radio broadcasting power.

OPPOSE PARLEY

Conference To Select Compromise Candidate Not Likely To Be Held

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 24—General opposition developed today to the proposal for a political conference to select a compromise candidate for president. It is unlikely that such a parley will be held.

ARREST OF SLAYER DUE IN 24 HOURS

Police Say He Is from Well-to-Do Family and Is Drug Addict

New York, Feb. 24—Search for the fiend who callously murdered Mrs. Margaret Brown, cultured governess, by burning her to death when she resisted his advances, centered today in "The Swamp," the slum section of Newark, N. J., and a rendezvous of criminals and dope fiends.

The identity of the "torch slayer," hidden in his letter of confession which he enclosed with the two $1,000 bonds and one $500 banknote he sent the police yesterday, is believed to be known and his arrest only hours away.

He is a drug addict who comes from a well-to-do, if not wealthy New York family, according to the New Jersey constabulary. They say his fondness for narcotics was engendered while he attended a college of medicine in Greater New York and that he flunked out of the university while within sight of an M. D. degree.

"Within 24 hours he will be under arrest," Capt. John J. Lamb of Troop B, New Jersey State Police, declared today.

KENTON MAN FINED ON RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

R. E. Radcliff, of Kenton, paid a fine of $10 and costs in Municipal Court this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving. He was arrested late yesterday afternoon after he had narrowly escaped running into a freight train at the Hocking Valley crossing on W. Center-st.

According to the arresting officer, Radcliff was traveling west on Center-st at a high rate of speed and reached the Hocking Valley crossing just as a freight train pulled over the crossing. It was necessary for him to turn south along the tracks, to avoid a collision with the train, police say.

Marion Railroad Men Are Watching With Interest Radio Communication Tests

Experiments May Open New Field in Broadcast Engineering That May Revolutionize System of Train Operation in Opinion of Local Workmen

Marion railroad men are watching with interest a new experiment being tried by many roads today in connection with train communications by means of radio.

Some venture the opinion that it will not be long before practically all fast passenger trains will be equipped with the new system while others feel that radio communication will never prove practical.

A success or not, the experiments may open up a new field in radio engineering that some day may revolutionize railroad communication and be another step forward in the operation of faster trains with less delay.

That railroad officials are taking considerable interest in train-caboose communication was shown in recent tests made by the New York Central Lines. More than three score railroad officials, radio engineers and telegraph experts witnessed the experiment on a 111-car freight train on a 95 mile run.

Rugged Equipment

Experimental equipment used was of a very rugged type able to withstand shocks and rough treatment. Tests of many months under the direction of radio engineers preceeded the installation on the train.

It was found that a brass pipe mounted around the water tank of the tender was the most effective for the locomotive antenna. It was supported on insulators about 12 inches above the metal framework and so low that it did not interfere with the taking on of water and coal. The caboose antenna was placed one and a half feet above the roof.

Antennae of the type used on engine and caboose do not possess any marked directional characteristics, but are inefficient radiators. This is caused by their low location and for this reason require more power for a given transmission range than would be necessary if higher antennae were available.

Bell Discarded

In first tests a relay actuated bell was used for calling but this was later discarded. Excessive jars caused relay contacts and it was possible for static and other disturbances to cause the bell to ring. The calling system finally developed utilized a loudspeaker, which produced a shrill note whenever a push button is depressed at the transmitting end. The pitch of the note is adjusted so that it is easily heard above the usual train noises. A loudspeaker is used instead of earphones for receiving conversation.

Simplex equipment was finally adopted for the tests after experiments had been carried out with duplex apparatus. The simplex system requires that a small button be pressed when one wishes to talk and upon releasing it the set is automatically transferred to the receiving condition. With the duplex system conversation can be carried on the same as over a telephone.

At the engine, electric current is supplied from the light generator, while on the caboose a dynamo is connected with the wheels. Transmission is accomplished through a 50 watt set.

Hemorrhoids Disappear

All Pile Misery Banished Without Cutting or Salves

External treatments seldom banish Piles and for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases—so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Henney & Cooper, who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.—Adv.

Biddle was the outstanding player on the Christian team scoring eight points. The Christians finished the season with four victories and one defeat.

Central Christians relinquished the hold on first place in the Senior loop after a hard battle with Trinity Baptist. The score was 26 to 21. Yazel led the Baptists to victory scoring nine points.

Epworth moved up to a tie for second place by defeating Calvary Evangelical 31 to 25. After making a poor start the Epworth team is fast recovering form displayed early in the season when they won the first round title. ## CONGER WILL SEEK NEW MILE MARK IN RELAYS ON APRIL 21

Olympic Contender Will Appear at Columbus During Ohio Event

Columbus, Feb. 24—Ray Conger, leading American middle distance Olympic contender, is to race at the Ohio Relays at Ohio State University on April 21, it was announced here today. The former Iowa State star, who last week defeated Lloyd Hahn at 1000 yards in record time, is to cover the one-mile route here in an endeavor to lower the world's record. The race in which he will run is a part of the varied program being prepared by relay officials.

To furnish the proper competition for Conger, the best men in the country in the mile run are being scrutinized. Invitations will soon be issued to two or three to come to Columbus to take part in this exhibition feature.

In the opinion of Sam Willaman, assistant football coach here, who was his coach at Ames, Conger is one of the finest athletes intercollegiate athletics has produced in recent years. Of exceptional natural ability, he is the type of athlete who asks no odds or favors.

His recent victory over Hahn at Kansas City, in which the world's record for 1,000 yards was broken, illustrates his powerful drive and extraordinary spinting ability, Willaman points out. The time for the race, 2 min. 11 secs., was made over a 12-lap, unbanked track. It was on this same track that Conger turned in a 1:55.4 half mile in a dual meet while running for Ames.

Some of Conger's records and achievements include—first place in the National Collegiate meet last June in the mile run time 4:17.6. He has twice bettared 1 min. 54 secs. in the 880-yard run, has done several unofficial 440-yard races under 49 seconds, and hung up the Missouri Valley record over the five-mile cross country course.

Add to these the fact that the Riceville, Ia., athlete had never run before he entered college and you have a remarkable record of persistence and natural ability, Willaman observes. Willaman, who is also intramural director at Ohio State, had Conger under his care while serving as athletic director at Iowa State College. According to Willaman, the first half mile that Conger ever ran was in the slow time of 2 min. 17 secs. Conger came out for track more to make friends among his classmates than with any idea that he would turn out to be America's best bet in the Olympics in his event, Willaman states.

His interest was soon caught by the sport, however, and it was a struggle to keep him from running too much. Once he struck his stride, he was found in front of the best fields with monotonous regularity and often served as anchor man on three Ames relay teams in the same meet.

Conger is married and is now getting his master's degree at Ames between his record-breaking performances in different parts of the country. He specializes in biology.

NEW RECORDS MADE

Newark, N. J., Feb. 24—Two new world's indoor records for women were made at the Women's Metropolitan Indoor Track and Field Championships here last night. Miss Ethel Emmons, of Patterson, N. J., leaped 8 feet 2 inches in the standing broad jump. Miss Mable Traveler, of Brooklyn, hurled the shot 32 feet 6 inches in the eight-pound shot put.

WISCONSIN DEFEATS PURDUE AT MADISON

Badgers Go Into First Place of Big Ten Through Victory

Madison, Wis., Feb. 24—Wisconsin today held undisputed claim to first place in the Big Ten standing following one of the most exciting basketball dramas ever staged in the Western Conference.

In the first of their two-game series for Big Ten leadership, played here last night, the Badgers defeated Purdue, 28 to 22. It was a game for the book. The sequel to this tilt will be staged tomorrow night on the Boilermakers' home floor at Lafayette.

With their short pass attack working like clockwork, the Badgers grabbed a lead in the first two minutes of play and were never headed. Wisconsin was ahead, 15 to 12.

The Boilermakers started a rally late in the final period that came within three points of overhauling the fast-going Badgers. Purdue's sharpshooters were stopped dead by the stellar guarding of Hotchkiss and Doyle.

Foster was the scoring ace for the victors. He shot six baskets and had one free throw.

The victory puts Wisconsin in first place with seven wins and only one defeat. Purdue has six victories and two defeats.

BRING 'EM ON

Sammy Mandell Wins 10-Round Fight with Fields

Chicago, Feb. 24—"Bring on McLarnin—or Terris!"

When Sammy Mandell, the lightweight champion of the world, was called to a ringside microphone last night, just after he had administered a scientific 10-round beating to Jackie Fields, Los Angeles junior welterweight, the breathless champion shouted a few high-pitched words into the "mike" that were too shrill and excited to be recorded on the average eardrum.

But on Sammy's face was a cocky, triumphant smile that said, plainer than any words, "bring on McLarnin or Terris!"

WASH YOUR KIDNEYS BY DRINKING WATER

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers, Also Take Some Salts

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

With the first round of the district championship but a wek away local fans will watch with intense interest the Harding High School game with Delaware at the Steam Shovel gym.

The contest will mark the close of the home court schedule of the Red and Black cagers. In a previous encounter the local quintet defeated Delaware on its own floor.

Harding has been going through some hard workouts during the past week. The team shows vast improvement and with another week of practice should be able to successfully cope with the best teams of the tournament.

In Star Auditorium tonight teams of the Marion County High School League will battle for the championship of the county. Six teams will play, the first game starting at 7 o'clock.

Third place of the county will be at stake when Waldo and Prospect meet in the first game. Each team won second place in its division of the Marion County loop.

TERRIS-M'LARNIN TO DRAW $85,000

Odds on Tonight's Fight Expected To Shift After Favoring Sid

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Feb. 24—Street merchants gibbered above the roar of the elevated as a baby boy came into the world some 20-odd years ago in a gas-lit flat of the lower east side and they called him Sid Terris. At or about the same time, a low-back car, coming out of the mists of the distant peet bogs, rattled over the cobbled streets of Belfast, Ireland, the music of its wheels playing an obligato to the plaintive protest so unmistakable of the newly-born. Then all was stilled, even the dread cry of the Banshee.

For the baby that was Jimmy McLarnin lived more or less happily ever after and even saw the day when he came to America, probably with the half formed notion that the police force needed at least one more good man. But, happily, it didn't.

Nor did the streets of the east side really need another business man, although by circumstance and environment Sid Terris seemed destined to grow bearded and moderately rich at the helm of his own push cart. But, happily, the streets didn't and Sidney didn't and so there will be 18,00 people at Madison Square Garden tonight to see two careers, begun thousands of miles apart, bisect at last.

They will meet under the glare of the ring lights in a 10 round bout for the right to challenge for the world's lightweight championship and, if romance really is dead, then my story is a vain one, indeed. For these young men, so lowly of origin, now are of a rank sufficiently exalted to attract a matter of $85,000 into the house and one of them may yet know the day when a world's championship is his.

Terris, the East Side's own, generally is regarded as the man who will do this. This town is ever skeptical of the product who is so ill-advised as to do his winning elsewhere and so McLarnin's fights with La Barba, Villa, Fields, Sangor, Kaplan and Wallace apparently have not been accepted at face value. Neither have Terris' visitations upon the floor at the behest of Goldstein, Wallace and McGraw in recent fights.

They expect Sidney to outdance and outbox the invader and all week long have been backing their judgment at odds of 8 to 5. Terris himself claims to have laid $1,000 on his chances at 7 to 5, and any time a young man like Sidney bets a thousand dollars, even if he only says he did, he must think he has something good.

McLarnin money has been almost incommunicado, to date, but the writer looks for the odds to shrink today. At least one sharpshooter I know is picking McLarnin to win by a knockout—at the proper odds—and another is getting down on him to win the decision. These men deal only in critical money and, as soon as they start shooting, the panic will be on. It wouldn't be surprising if dollar for dollar prevailed when the two principals go to bat.

IT ALL DEPENDS

Nothing Is Certain About Next Heavyweight Fight

New York, Feb. 24—Tex Rickard here today after a vacation in Florida, said that whether Gene Tunney defends his title in June or later depends on the outcome of the two elimination bouts next month. If one of the winners disposes of his opponent by a knockout, Tunney will meet that man in June. If neither fight produces a sensational winner, the two survivors will meet in May.

Rickard is still guessing about Dempsey. He says Jack has retired but evidently believes he can be coaxed back for one more crack at Tunney next fall.

Training Camp Briefs

NEW YORK, Feb. 24—Headed by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, the first detachment of the New York Yankees leaves here today for training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla. The other members of the advance guard are catcher John Grabowski, Leo Durocher, St. Paul infielder who played with Springfield, Mass., last year, and Bill Eisemann, former Syracuse University catcher.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24—Weather permitting, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh will give his Cleveland Indians outdoor practice here today. Otherwise the players will have to limber up in the Elks' gymnasium. The rain, which has been falling for the past two days, stopped long enough yesterday to allow the Indians their first outdoor drill of the season for one hour.

PLEASANT WINS

Pleasant volley ball team defeated Prospect at Pleasant last night five games, 16-4, 15-10, 15-2, 15-0 and 15-5.

TO CALL OFF MATCH

Commission Must Reinstate Dundee Within Next 10 Days

New York, Feb. 24—Jess M[illegible] matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, declared today that he w[illegible] off the proposed March 23 bout [illegible] Joe Dundee and Ace Hudkins unless the New York Boxing Commiss[illegible] states Dundee within 10 days.

It is said that the welterweight champion and his manager, Max Waxman, must return to California to stand trial early in March on charges growing out of Dundee's withdrawal from a match with Hudkins in Los Angeles last fall.

BERNSTEIN WILL RECEIVE GATE RECEIPTS OF FIGHT

New York, Feb. 24—Joe Bernstein, former ring idol now crippled by illness, will be given the gate receipts of a benefit boxing show held at the Broadway Arena in Brooklyn last night. A series of four round bouts was put on for 2,000 spectators.

Tony Canzoneri, featherweight champion, outpointed Pete Passafume and Corporal Izzy Schwartz, New York fly-weight king, won the decision over Benny Hall, of St. Louis.

HUNGARY REFUSES TO HOLD GUN CARGO

Incident Causes Considerable Criticism in League of Nations Circles

Geneva, Feb. 24—Hungary has refused to comply with the request of the League of Nations council that the machine guns shipped into that country from Italy be held as "evidence" for the league investigation next month, it was learned this afternoon. It is not certain whether the Hungarians have sold the machine guns or ordered them destroyed. There were between 500 and 000 cases in the shipment.

The incident has caused a great deal of criticism.

It is felt in league circles that Hungary's action will force the league as a whole to act. Hungary has weakened her middle European position. It is understood that the support she has been receiving from Germany and Italy has been withdrawn.

ON WITH AUCTION
Hungarian Premier Will Not Hold Up Sale of Guns

Budapest, Feb. 24—Count Bethlen, the Hungarian premier, has sent a communication to the secretariat of the League of Nations stating that the auction of the Italian machine guns seized at St. Gotthard will proceed as planned despite the urgent warning of the president of the league council that the arms be held as "evidence." It was learned today. The auction of the machine guns was set for this afternoon.

Count Bethlen stated, however, that Hungary would give all the information available when the league council begins its investigation into the shipment of the arms next month. The league is particularly anxious to know who ordered the machine guns and why.

SET ELECTION DATE FOR DAVIS CHARTER

Cleveland, Feb. 24—For the second time within six months, the Harry L. Davis charter amendment proposal, calling for a mayoralty form of municipal government, and substituting a ward system of voting for that of the present proportional representation plan in Cleveland, will go to a vote of the people.

25 AT MEETING

Caledonia Ladies Aid Society Holds Session in Church

Caledonia, Feb. 24—Twenty five members and two guests were present at a meeting of the Methodist Ladies Aid Society, which was held in the Sunday School room of the church yesterday afternoon. Mrs. A. R. Glass, Mrs. Frank Ehlers, Mrs. Everett Shoemaker and Mrs. F. O. Shaffer were hostesses. Following the business session the group gathered in the dining room which was attractively decorated in red, white and blue. A two course lunch was served. Miniature hatchets were favors.

For the devotional period Mrs. F. S. Fraucher presided. For the scripture lesson she read from the fourth chapter of Philippians and for the subject she used "Breaking Down the Barriers" and concluded with prayer.

Routine business was conducted and it was voted to hold the Easter Bazaar April 3.

A report from the dinner served at the Father and Son banquet showed a net sum of more than $35. This is to be given to the Mountaineers of Kentucky.

Guests at the meeting were Miss Emma Owens and Mrs. Forest Hipsher, the latter gave her name as a new member. The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. R. Harrison.

FAMILY BELIEVES HOUSE SET AFIRE

Cause of Blaze at Tom Verno Residence, W. Center-st, Remains Mystery

Cause of the blaze which partially destroyed the home of Tom Verno, 595 W. Center-st early Monday morning continues to be a mystery. Members of the Verno family, who were out of the city at the time of the fire, have returned but are unable to throw any light on the cause of the fire.

Mrs. Verno said they left their home the latter part of last week and before leaving had put out all of the fires so the blaze could not have started in the house. That the house was set afire is their belief and that of fire officials. When discovered by employes of the Erie railroad shortly before 4 o'clock Monday morning, the entire rear part of the house was ablaze.

CALENDAR TRICK

Woman, 32, Celebrates Seventh Birthday Anniversary

YOU'VE all worked the one about the hen and a half laying an egg and a half, and getting the goat and the cabbage across the river but here's one for you. A Marion woman will celebrate her seventh birthday anniversary within a few days and celebrating the event with her will be her husband and two daughters, Alice, aged eight years, and Florence, aged five years. Now here's where the plot gets thicker than ever. She's 32 years old. Do you give up? Well, she was born 32 years ago Feb. 29, and while the calendar man gets big hearted and throws in an extra day, every four years, he laid down on the job in 1900, which was a century year, cheating her out of a birthday. The celebrant is Mrs. Eleanor Kerr, Chicago-av, wife of Parker Kerr, manager of the Used Car Department of the Haberman Chevrolet Co.

Some women age so young

YOU'VE known them . . . women who start out in life radiantly fresh and alive. . . . Then something happens. Almost before you know it —their bloom and freshness have gone. . . . Youth without health! What a pathetic thing it is! Pinched, wan cheeks and pain-dulled eyes when, by every right, they should be just beginning to live!

Constipation wrecks health and happiness for thousands of women and men. Stealing beauty. Thieving vitality. It is the cause of untold disease and suffering.

And more's the pity when it can be so surely prevented. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation safely. To prevent it ever beginning its deadly work.

It takes ALL-BRAN to be 100% effective

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is rich in bulk—and it is "bulk" that relieves constipation. It absorbs moisture and carries it through the alimentary canal. Gently distending the intestines—sweeping out poisons and wastes. In a part-bran product, there is seldom enough bulk to do this work effectively. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran.

Totally unlike habit-forming drugs

ALL-BRAN is infinitely better than dangerous pills and laxatives—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. A naturally healthful cereal. Delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle into soups. Mix with other cereals. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, every meal. . . .

Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Don't risk part-bran substitutes which, at best, can be but partially effective. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

MARION'S FINEST MARKET

WE ACCEPT THE RESPONSIBILITY

The American Public has learned to demand high Standards of Quality in Meats. And value is an important consideration in every purchase, for even the wealthiest practice thrift. Low prices alone is not proof of good values. The true economy is that which considers quality and dependability, as well as price when value is to be determined. For that reason we sell only meats that are dependable at prices that are fair, and we accept full responsibility for the quality of everything we sell.

LUXURIOUS MEAT at a price anyone can afford—that's the new, improved Sugardale sugar-cured ham. It's so good it makes any meal a banquet, for it is sweet and mild and tender, with just the right touch of smoky tang. And every ham is the same—never a one too salty, and no need of parboiling.

Even the appearance of the new Sugardale Hams is distinctive—every one plump and luscious and almost all steak. Sugardale Hams are individually selected from the finest tender, sleek young porkers. That's why they have less waste and more good meat in proportion to bone than any ham you ever saw.

Next time you want something extra good, pass up expensive meats and try a whole or half Sugardale sugar-cured Ham. It "goes right to the spot" every time.

Sugardale

Sugardale Bacon, too, is now cured by the special new sugar-cured process. It's so good it "melts in your mouth." Try it and you'll never go back to ordinary bacon again.

A full line of delicious meats are prepared the special Sugardale way—all tender and pure and with a zestful flavor all their own. Many are ready-cooked, ready to serve.

Stories Of Poverty And Suffering Are Told Senate Coal Committee By Miners And Their Families; Conditions Seen

Low Barracks and Dirty Bunk Houses in Ocean of Slimy Mud

TELL GRIPPING TALES

Chairman Gooding of Idaho Takes Notes To Present to Congress

Pittsburgh Feb. 24—Within an easy half hour's automobile drive of Pittsburgh, one of the world's richest industrial centers, a group of long, low barracks and bunk houses squat crazily in a veritable ocean of slimy mud.

The scene is a dingy, six by eight kitchen in one of the barracks. A woman, her face seared with the heavy lines of toil, her hands gnarled from washing clothes in hot tubs of water, holds a young baby girl in her arms. She is the wife of one of the striking coal miners. She stands with her back to a roaring stove, on which potatoes are cooking.

Crowded into the kitchen so that there is barely room to breathe are the four members of the Senate Coal Committee, representatives of the United Mine Workers and newspapermen. Outside a group of ragtag children keep up a humdrum noise. They try to poke their heads into the door and the one tiny window. On an outer fringe striking miners and their families hover silently. Across the street are a row of empty houses from which miners have been evicted.

Tells Gripping Story

In a simple straight forward manner, the woman tells a story so gripping that committee members, already wearied with tramping over hill and valley, and through oozing mud that splaces up the trousers' leg at each step, "hang on her every word."

"A bunch of scabs were going home from work as school was letting out," she says. "They called names at them as children will. Two of my children were in the group. Soon the strike breakers, all negroes, turned and fired into the children. None was killed. Some coal and iron police came along about that time. I rushed out to the children. The police warned me to get away. I told them they had no right to come on private property to take the bread out of our mouths. One of them grabbed me.

Struck Over Head

"I hit him in the jaw with my free hand. Then something struck the back of my head and I was unconscious. When I came to, a pair of handcuffs were on my wrist. I demanded to be set free. The policeman told me to 'Go to Hell.' He twisted the handcuff until the blood came. I was marched up the railroad track and held for an hour. I saw two policemen with machine guns and said to the woman next to me, "They aren't going to give us a hearing.' The policeman replied, 'these guns aren't for you, they're for your men."

The scene changes to a bunk house for negro non-union miners. At the back runs a dirty stream. It is used to carry off waste. Some of the workers have just come out of the pit, 150 feet below. The Senate committee corrals them in a semi-circle and shoots a rapid-fire of questions at them.

Finds "Dead Soldiers"

"I been here two months and ain't got nothing," says one. "The mine is full of water and they don't give us cars or tools to get out the coal."

"How much do you get net, after all expenses are paid, at pay day every two weeks?" is asked of several of them.

The answers range from "nothing," to $2.38 to $15. The last came from the huskiest man in the group. The company pays the men 65 cents a ton for mining coal but takes out board and lodging, tools, stores, etc, so that on pay day few of the men have ready cash.

Senator Gooding, Republican of Idaho, chairman, leads the way into one of the rooms. It is 10 by 12 and has nine cots. Under one of the bunks he finds three "dead soldiers" and asks the official stenographer to make a note of it.

Tells of Conditions

At another similar bunkhouse, with its foul smelling air, the committee talks to a young white boy. A fuzzy mustache spread his upper lip.

"The place is no good," he tells the committee. "It's not sanitary and is full of bedbugs and lice. I know only two men here in the camp who have made any money."

He says further that coal and iron police won't let the workers leave camps, and declares there is plenty of liquor and that there are disorderly houses nearby. Gooding again instructs the stenographer to put this on the record for the Senate.

1927 Free From Extremes In Climatic Conditions

From a weather standpoint, the year 1927 for Marion and the majority of Ohio cities, was one of the most agreeable on record, being largely free from severe extremes and climatic disorders. This information was summed up in the state report of climatological data just received here by Dr. E. H. Haffensperger, local weather observer.

A pronounced warm spell began about the middle of January and continued for some 60 days, resulting in one of the warmest Februarys on record. A warm spell slightly less intense from October to December, was responsible for an unusually warm November and fall. The summer, too, was said to have been one of the most delightful on record. The temperature departures and variations were very small from March to October.

The precipitation was excessive for the year as a whole, eight months of the year showing an excess and only three or four Ohio stations recording less than the normal for the year.

First Killing Frost

The number of days with rain or snow exceeded the average by about 10 and the snowfall for the year was only about 60 per cent of the normal figure. The first killing frost in the alutumn occurred Nov. 4 and the last in the spring on April 24. Only 14.5 inches of snow fell during the year and 48.45 inches of rain. The greatest amount of rain for one month fell in November, 7.85 inches and the least, 1.91 inches, in October.

Marion's highest temperature for the year was 91 degrees on July 13, the lowest, two below zero on Jan. 15. The annual mean was 51.9 degrees. During the year there were 120 days with precipitation .01 inches or more, 126 clear days, 119 partly cloudy, and 125 that were cloudy. The prevailing direction of the wind was southwest.

Last year's average temperature was .7 higher than the average mean temperature of 51.9 over a period of 30 years. The rainfall for the year was 9.05 inches more than the average over a period of 50 years.

New York, Feb. 24—The downward price movement in the speculative stock leaders continued with slight interruption today. Though the $91,000,000 decline in brokers' loans was well beyond Wall Street's expectation, and therefore a favorable market factor, traders were little disposed to add to their speculative commitments at a time when the majority of the pools were reported to be "unloading."

A buying move in the railroad stocks followed reports that the big rivals in the trunk line consolidation schemes had finally agreed upon a program which will be agreeable to all. According to these reports, L. F. Loree, representing the Harriman interests and heading up the Delaware & Hudson and Kansas City Southern, has agreed to abandon his fifth-trunkline program, releasing Wabash to the Nickel Plate or to Baltimore & Ohio interests.

It is known that Mr. Loree, Daniel Willard, president E. E. Loomis of the Lehigh Valley are at present sojourning in the south under conditions which permit of frank and full discussion of the problems confronting the roads. Wabash was a leader in the speculative rails, with a gain of more than four points at 59 1-4. Seaboard Air Line recovered a part of yesterday's losses on announcement by officials of the road that the January operations and final quarter 1927 were more profitable than some of the recent estimates. Pennsylvania and New York Central sold about a point each in further response to their unusually favorable 1927 net earnings reports, and the so-called Nickel Plate group reached a higher price level.

Coffee Market

New York, Feb. 24—The local coffee futures market opened firm today. Initial quotations displayed net gains of 4 to 14 points. March sold at 15.12, up 04; May 14.40, up 01; July 14.30, up 10; September 14.04, up 10 and December 13.84, up 14.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, Feb. 24—Realizing sales by commission houses on the early upturns weakened the wheat market and when locals, who had been absorbing the offerings, liquidated in the closing hour, prices broke sharply. Weakness in corn contributed a depressing influence.

Although highest prices were 1c above Tuesday's final quotations, wheat was 1-4@1-2c off at the close, March finished at $1.33 1-8, May $1.33 7-8@1.34, and July $1.31 3-4.

Wheat went sharply higher at the outset due to the advances of Winnipeg, Liverpool and Buenos Aires on Wednesday. There was also some buying of wheat against sales of corn early. However, the advances attracted considerable liquidation and the market declined about 1 1-2c from the high points.

Foreign markets failed to maintain their advances of Wednesday, which brought further pressure on the local prices. Liverpool closed ⅛@⅝d lower; Winnipeg declined 1@1⅛c, and Buenos Aires was ¼c lower at mid-session.

Cash Trade Quiet

Cash wheat trade was quiet. There was a fair inquiry, but offerings were very light. Basis was unchanged to ½c higher. Local sales totaled 40,000 bu; receipts 18 cars.

Forecast Argentine shipments show an increase at 6,431,000 bu, against 5,800,000 bu a week ago and 6,352,000 bu a year ago. Black Sea shipments were up to 88,000 bu compared with 32,000 bu a week ago and 424,000 bu a year ago. Of the total Russia shipped 8,000 bu. Weather over most of the European Winter wheat has improved. Canadian country marketings were the smallest in some time at 465,000 bu against 468,000 bu a year ago.

With the exception of forecast cold weather, which may bring the persistently heralded heavy movement, news in corn was generally conducive toward higher prices. However, the market appeared overbought and longs quickly took advantage of the firm opening to liquidate some of their holdings.

Commission house buying on resting orders slowed the decline, and there were two rallies on upturns in which but prices eased off into the cost of the privileges.

Heavy rains, unfavorable to the crop at this stage, were reported in Argentina. Receipts for over the holiday were not excessively large at 303 cars and the cash market was firm, [illegible] in Europe.

Cash trading basis was [illegible]

Marion Railroad Worker in Game Half Century to be Retired in Five Years

Frank W. Mayer, 407 Cherry-st, with Big Four Here Since 1885

Looking Forward to Even Greater Period of Achievement in Next 50 Years

HAVING witnessed one of the greatest periods of railroad advancement, Frank W. Mayer, 407 Cherry-st, freight agent of the Big Four Railroad, is looking forward to an even greater period of achievement in the future.

For nearly a half century Mr. Mayer has been actively engaged in railroad work in Marion and is really one of the "old timers." He is nearly 65 years old and takes keen interest in the doings of the world as he directs activities at the freight house. He will be retired at the age of 70 years.

Feb. 1 Mr. Mayer observed his forty-eighth anniversary in the railroad game. He got his start on the Hocking Valley railroad in 1880 and in 1885 succeeded his father at the Big Four freight offices.

This veteran railroader in reality grew up in the railroad industry. His father, the late C. E. Mayer, during the early fifties was employed by the Big Four.

Getting an early training under his father, Mr. Mayer was well equipped for his first position on the Hocking Valley. Five years later when his father became ill he changed positions to the Big Four.

Sees Many Changes

Not only has Mr. Mayer seen the railroad industry grow but has witnessed Marion change from a mere village of slightly over 2,000 to a city of around 33,000.

Marion began to grow rapidly with the start of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., he said. In 1884 the company located on Main-st and the next year moved to the buildings on the north side of W. Center-st. The plant rapidly expanded until it reached its present standing in Marion.

In 1878 Mr. Mayer worked at the Huber Manufacturing Co., then the leading industry of Marion. His weekly pay amounted to $3. This was considered a good wage. A meal at that time cost around 16 cents. The Huber Co. at that time was famous for its revolving hay rakes, separators and steam engines.

Spent Sundays at Station

He remembers the time when only two railroads, the Erie and Big Four, passed through Marion. A union depot was located on N. State-st, on the north side of the present tracks, where a fountain surrounded by trees made the station one of the beauty spots of the city. Marion residents on Sundays would spend the day at this place.

Although small, the early engines would travel at a fair rate of speed, he continued. Fifty miles an hour was not unusual. Fifteen freight cars, each carrying 12 tons of freight, made up what was considered a heavy load.

As the engines grew larger, speed was increased. When the first engines of the mogul type appeared, engineers were afraid to run them. It was the popular belief that the engines would fall over as a result of being top heavy.

Accidents Numerous

Accidents in those days were numerous, he pointed out. Engineers were given orders to proceed four or five miles and then would be compelled to obtain new instructions from the dispatcher. Head-on collisions were frequent.

Today, he stated, most of the responsibility rests on the engineer. Very few orders are now given with the block system taking away hazards of collision.

He said as a boy, he walked through a pasture field on the way to school where the Harding Hotel now is situated.

Since Mr. Mayer has been connected with the railroad, he has seen the passing of the old wood burning locomotive to the gigantic coal burning, smoke-belching, steel monsters of today.

He can remember the days when automatic couplers on railroad cars were unknown. In the old days of railroading cars were coupled by the link and pin method.

Cites Safety Developments

Safety appliances have developed at a fast pace with traffic accidents less liable on roads today than in early days. Mr. Mayer stated that the air-brake has been a great factor in improvement of safety conditions.

Rails used on the early roads were of the 56-pound variety while today they are over twice as heavy. Box cars were able to haul 12 tons of freight then and now the capacity varies from 70 to 100 tons.

Railroading in its present day phase, he stated, has been made possible through system. Every man employed by railroad companies has a certain task to perform and a failure to do this may mean a delay or an accident. One workman is a small but important link in a large chain, he pointed out.

Another half century, he said in closing the interview, will see transportation making equal if not greater strides than was witnessed during the last 50 years.

Vernon Heights Junior High will repeat the play, "Windmills of Holland," this evening at the Vernon Heights building.—Adv.
